Copyright, 1925, by Star Co.

WHEN YOU ARE doing one thing, it is hard to continue interest in other things. That's what makes it hard for the average American, concentrated on his particular enterprise, to pay attention to government, science, grand opera, studies on atomic construction, and the latest developments of the mechanism, the theory in biology.

THIS IS WRITTEN during a pause in a land hunting expedition. The day's task is the selection of a ten thousand acre tract along the new line of the Seaboard Air Line Railway. When your mind is on land, other things dwindle.

THE MOST IMPORTANT personage today seems to be Mrs. Glass, who keeps the excellent hotel at Stuart. Her father bought a few hundred acres on the ocean front. General Grant, as President, signed the government deed. It cost 25 cents an acre. "We got tired of paying taxes, even if it was only a dollar or two, so we sold the land for one dollar an acre. That was a profit of 300 per cent. on the cost. We thought we did pretty well."

SHE SIGHED, and so would you have sighed. The land would be cheap at two thousand dollars an acre now. Compare Cassandra's wailings and warnings with a case like that. There are real estate tragedies, like the Indians selling New York city for $24, that not even Euripides could handle.

GET THE RIGHT piece of real estate, somewhere, and having got it, grapple it to your bosom with hooks of steel. Don't let anybody get it away from you that you may not curse your folly, as you grow older.

THAT BEING SAID, what is the news, apart from Mrs. Glass' calamity? Not much. If Lincoln had come back to spend his birthday he would have found us a land closely united, once more, but with many sub-divisions, for every American at least ten lots neatly laid out, each an opportunity once missed, never to be equalled.

HE, WHO REPRESENTED no money, and constant, earnest, worried thinking, would find us a nation of money unlimited, and little thinking. He would find children learning one or two of his speeches by heart, grown men celebrating his birthday with golf or other substitutes for mental occupation. And he would find, if he brought one of his speeches up to date and delivered it, adapted to our day, that we do not tolerate ultra-radicalism, or Bolshevism, and our best minds would tell him so, plainly.

LINCOLN WOULD FIND two or three men in the Senate denouncing the plan to turn over public property at Muscle Shoals, worth hundreds of millions, to private exploitation. He would want to shake hands with the few objectors. But the spirit guiding him back to earth would say: "Don't do that. Those Senators are not considered respectable. They have been put out of the party that you established. Don't you see that they are opposing the management of the country by its natural rulers, the big corporations."

THE LA FOLLETTE followers "clash," as newspaper English puts it, in their efforts to establish a permanent third party. The clashing is unnecessary, also the discussion about admitting Socialists to the third party.

THIS IS NOT a country for three parties, or two parties, either. It is a one-party nation. The one party has two

DIGGERS FIND NEW CAVE; RESCUE NEAR

DEFIES BANDITS AT STATE PIER, SAVES PAYROLL OF $2,500

The courage of Paymaster Arthur A. Ames today saved the $2,500 payroll of the Quinn Brothers Company, stevedores.

When Ames stepped from a taxicab outside the company's office at Commonwealth Pier, with the payroll money from a Boston bank, he was confronted by two young bandits. One shoved a revolver against his side and ordered him back into the cab.

"I'll guess not," said Ames, and bolted to his office, twenty yards away.

One of the bandits, who had been watching the taxi driver, started to pursue Ames, but the appearance of Special Officer William O'Brien, some distance down the pier, changed his mind.

FLOOD SWEEPS AWAY N. HAMPSHIRE BRIDGE

Railroad service in several sections of Vermont and New Hampshire was crippled today by the destruction of one bridge and damage to others by the flooded waters of the Merrimack and Connecticut rivers and their tributaries.

The Boston & Maine railroad bridge over the Mascoma River at Patten was carried away by an ice jam after a corps of workmen labored throughout the night to save the structure.

Trains between Concord, N. H., and White River Junction, Vt., are being routed through Woodsville.

Several New Hampshire mills have been forced to suspend operation because of flood damage. At Whitefield, N. H., a tanning mill

HUGGER FLEES AFTER ATTACKING LYNN GIRL

Sadie Resnick, sixteen years old, of No. 56 Prospect street, Lynn, is the latest victim of "Jack the Hugger."

The girl was returning home from a motion picture show when her attacker leaped out of a doorway and threw his arms about her. She struggled furiously against his embrace and screamed for help.

Nearly a hundred pedestrians were attracted to the scene by her cries. The man fled, pursued by many of those who had come to the girl's assistance. He criss-crossed through the neighborhood, down Charles street and finally eluded his pursuers on the Boston & Maine Railroad tracks.

When the police arrived the girl, in an almost fainting condition, related what had happened. The neighborhood was combed for the "hugger" without result.

ESCAPE FROM SINKING DREDGER

Group of men who escaped from sinking dredge, shown at top, in the Mystic River near Sullivan square bridge. Though they had little or no time to save their personal effects they didn't forget the boat's mascots, the cats held by the men at each end of the line. The picture of the boat was taken at low tide. When the men escaped the craft was nearly submerged for it was high tide.

COLLINS' BROTHER SEES HOPE; DOCTOR READY TO GIVE AID

Cave City, Ky., Feb. 13 (A.P.)—Preliminary exploration of the newfound tunnel was the determination of the fresh shift which went down in the shaft at 9 a. m. One slender, determined digger vowing that "orders or no orders, he proposed to explore that tunnel a ways." It was hoped to get Collins out in a few hours.

Cave City, Ky., Feb. 13 (A. P.).—Homer Collins, younger brother of the imprisoned Floyd Collins, came out of the rescue shaft today and said: "I have great hopes."

H. T. Carmichael and two miners then began exploration of a tunnel discovered today in the side of the rescue shaft.

All spectators and reporters were ordered away from the mouth of the shaft to the top of a hill, a hundred feet or more distant.

Additional timber was being taken into the shaft a short time after the newspaper men and some 200 spectators were herded together at the top of the hill.

Dr. William Haslett of Chicago, in charge of the medical preparations for attending Floyd Collins, if he is found with even a faint spark of life, completed apparently every possible preparation.

Dr. Haslett is to be sent down into the tunnel as soon as Collins is located, to determine if he is dead or alive, before any attempt is made to remove him.

SCHOOL TREASURER SHORT, KILLS SELF

Hampton, N. H., Feb. 13.—Edward J. Brown, treasurer of the Hampton school district, committed suicide today by inhaling gas. An audit of his accounts recently disclosed a shortage of $10,000, town officials said.

An attachment was levied yester-day on Brown's property here because of the alleged shortage and a deputy sheriff was on his way to Portsmouth to attach a bank account and a camp owned by the treasurer when news was received of his death. He had held the office two years.

DRIVER KILLED AS TRUCK HITS STORE

Theodore Wilson, forty years old, of No. 671 Tremont street, Roxbury, was instantly killed today when the five-ton truck he was driving got out of his control and plunged down Town Hill Hill in Spencer.

Wilson was hurled against a building as the truck swerved from the road and imbedded itself in the side of a store. His body was removed from the wreckage with difficulty.

Wilson was a driver for the T. Lilley & French Trucking Company, No. 39 Hartford street, Boston, and was en route to Springfield with a load of flower pots.

HOLD 4 YANKEES AS 'BOOZE' SHIP PIRATES

Lunenburg, N. S., Feb. 13.—Four Americans are in custody here, charged with having staged a desperate liquor foray in which the crew of the schooner Ellice B. were victims.

The prisoners are Thomas Lynch of Boston, Harry Regan of New York, and Steve Thompson and David Press, address unknown.

It is charged they boarded the Ellice B. at night, armed; beat the ship watchman unconscious when he refused to lead them to liquor; attacked a seaman and compelled him, at pistol point, to take them to the homes of other members of the crew, where they conducted raids that netted several cases of whiskey.

The seaman, it is alleged, was compelled to drive the raiders with their spoil to a hotel, where three of them were captured by Sheriff Creighton. The fourth prisoner was taken from the schooner Hazel Berman as she was about to sail.

FULLERS GUESTS AT WHITE HOUSE DINNER

Washington, Feb. 13.—The White House had a distinctly New England atmosphere when the President and Mrs. Coolidge entertained at dinner in honor of Speaker of the House Frederick Gillett and Mrs. Gillett.

There were 45 guests at the dinner and among these were Governor Fuller of Massachusetts and Mrs. Fuller and Dr. Alfred Stearns, president of Phillips Andover Academy.

COLLINS' RESCUERS STRIKE TUNNEL LEADING TO TRAPPED MAN

CAVE DRAFT IS SO STRONG THAT MINERS' LAMPS ARE BLOWN OUT BY IT

Cave City, Ky., Feb. 13 (A. P.).—A tunnel which the rescuers hope may lead to the cavern behind Floyd Collins was discovered on the left or northwest side of the Sand Cave rescue shaft early today.

Timbering was rushed on the fifteenth section and preparations made to drive piling into the side wall, around and above the tunnel hole, so a rescue party could enter it with safety.

The hole was unmistakably a passageway leading down into limestone, and miners brought up pieces of cavernous rock to exhibit to H. T. Carmichael, the medical staff and other officials who were hurriedly awakened.

While the miners felt that it might be several hours before a rescue party would be permitted to explore this tunnel, there was already keen competition among the diggers for the honor of going down on the next shift. The downdraft in the shaft was so strong that the miners' lamps were blown out when they looked down the tunnel.

LAMPS BLOWN OUT.

When the hole was discovered Carmichael, in charge of the shaft, and a doctor, were awakened.

Meanwhile the diggers had uncovered a hole which seemed two or three feet high extending downward at a rather sharp slope.

Their lamps were blown out by the downdraft when they looked down the hole. The bottom of the shaft was hurriedly cleared for the sixteenth section of timbering, so short piles could be driven in the side wall parallel to the new tunnel.

Looking down the mouth of the shaft, the shadow of the hole was clearly evident. The downdraft had cleared out the shaft of the thin fog which has filled it since the cold snap, caused by the miners' breath and the warmth of their bodies. The hole, in the flickering light of the miners' lamps, appeared to extend nearly half way across one side of the six-foot square shaft.

INSPECTS TUNNEL.

The hole was found in the side wall at about the fifty-foot mark, measuring from the low side, or fifty-five feet measuring from the high side of the shaft away from the mouth of Sand Cave.

In the original exploration of the diamond core drill a few feet distant from the shaft, a soft spot was indicated at fifty-one feet, and another such soft spot was shown last night, followed by at least ten feet of limestone.

The drill was boring further into this today when the top of the new tunnel was uncovered. Drilling was at once stopped, to concentrate on clearing out this tunnel.

The engineering staff made immediate preparations to timber around and down into the new tunnel, and finish the sixteenth section of shaft timbering only sufficiently to prevent serious cave-ins on the wall opposite the new tunnel.

Carmichael explored the mouth of the new tunnel at daybreak and said he hoped they would have Collins out soon.

The new tunnel, as the mouth of it was further cleared away, was easily large enough to accommodate a good-sized man, and as far as they could peer down into it, ran straight away from the northwest corner of the shaft, diagonally to the left toward the mouth of Sand Cave.

The tunnel was discovered just beneath a thick limestone ledge, giving the officials hope the new tunnel was part of the same honeycomb working in which Collins is trapped.

From his preliminary explorations of the new tunnel, Carmichael indicated he believed the tunnel would lead down to a huge pit located just behind Collins. Entering this they could roll the rock off Collins' legs and release him.

HOPES RAN HIGH.

The high hopes of the diggers and engineers shone in their faces when the mouth of the tunnel was completely exposed, and the miners confidently predicted they would have "Collins out soon."

The workmen at the bottom of the shaft are standing on a ten-foot ledge of limestone, so they are in no danger of breaking through into a cavern.

When the first exploring party enters the tunnel they likely will have ropes around their waists, so they may be held safely if the new tunnel drops over a cliff. The original Sand Cave tunnel drops over a ten-foot cliff a few feet inside the mouth.

Rivalry and Jealousy, Says Homer Collins

Cave City, Ky., Feb. 13 (A.P.)—The feeling between factions in the early rescue parties at Sand Cave was rivalry and not jealousy, witnesses testified before the State military board of inquiry, Homer Collins, brother of Floyd Collins, said that no one was ever advised to stay out of the cave except for motives of safety.

The Cave County people, Homer said, felt that outsiders, inexperienced in exploring caves, might cause cave-ins from lack of knowledge of the sandstone formation of the caverns, but no one was ever prevented from going down until the State troops came.

Dynamite Caused Fatal Cave Landslide

Cave City, Ky., Feb. 13.—Lee Collins, father of Floyd Collins, cave victim, stated today that his son was indirectly responsible for the plight he is in.

The elder Collins declared that Floyd, whom he now believes is dead, used dynamite to effect an entrance into a cave and that the blast so shook the earth that the landslide which pinned him beneath the huge boulder resulted.

Floyd, he said, had worked for three weeks to enter the cave before he made the plunge. Then creeping along on his hands and knees, he proceeded downward until he reached a point where the passage was too narrow for any human being to crawl through. Here, says the elder Collins, his son used the dynamite, crawling under an overhanging rock for protection. After the blast, he went out to clear the debris and while thus engaged, the landslide occurred which made him a prisoner, according to the father's opinion.

divisions, Republican and Democratic. The Democratic half is a sort of spare tire, carried behind prosperity's bandwagon. It is there, just in case, kept ready inflated, and if an accident should happen, a Republican blow-out would hardly be noticed by the passengers. The Democratic substitute might be a little smoother, more conservative than the Republican, but very little.

HAPPY PEOPLE that have no history. Happy, perhaps, but dull. "The history of America as written for this period would say: "Continual development of intensely scientific industry, with great increase in wealth marked the second quarter of 20th century. Civilized Europe, and partly civilized Asia, saw in the great republic only what Venice had represented a few centuries before, wealth to be envied, and extracted, if possible."

IF THIS COUNTRY had time to think seriously outside of real estate business and stocks, the gentlemen that oppose aircraft construction and defence, to maintain the profits of battleship builders, might find themselves on trial to decide whether they were traitors or only fools. A Congressional committee listens to the statements that twelve anti-aircraft guns could ward off any aircraft attack.

ARMY FLIERS testify that trained air pilots "snap their fingers at anti-aircraft guns." The question is not one of opinion. The government knows that anti-aircraft guns are useless, thanks to the following experiments: A dummy airplane, very conspicuous, and offering the same target as a regular machine, was dragged through the air, behind a real flying machine, at rather slow speed and at rather low elevation. The anti-aircraft gunners, excellent marksmen, did their best. And how many hits did they score? Not one.

THERE IS NO defence against airplane attack, except air plane defence. One flight of airplanes, which means two inexpensive machines, can sink any battleship in the world. Fortunately, the nation may not find it necessary to depend exclusively on our politicians, low class statesmen and high class grafters. Henry Ford and other manufacturers may do for the people what they lack the brains and energy to do for themselves.

IT IS SAID that Mr. Ford's son, in many ways as able as his father, and with the blessing of youth, is deeply interested in aircraft. If predictions are verified and the Fords, father and son, undertake the building of all-metal airplanes, in quantity production, one great problem will be solved.

IF FORD WILL supply machines plenty of young Americans will be ready to fly them. We may not have at first such machines as the British are building, to go six miles a minute, and faster, if possible. But with enough flying machines, any flying men from Asia or elsewhere would receive a warm welcome in this country before reaching the ground. And they would reach the ground, soon after.

THE FORDS have the power, knowledge, industrial genius and money to put this nation ahead of all others in air defence. Let them do that, and their fame will outlast the memory of war.

Hartford, Feb. 13.—A bill for taxation of cats had vigorous opposition by Justice of the Peace William H. Fairchild before the legislative Committee on Finance. BUDLONGS PLAN A RECONCILIATION

Gloom at City Hall! 'Rum Radio Box' Seized

BUDLONGS ARE NEAR REUNION

Wife Accepts Husband's Written Invitation to Effect Reconciliation

Newport, R. I., Feb. 13.—In an exclusive announcement today to the Boston Evening American, Mrs. Margaret Jessie Budong declared that a reconciliation with her millionaire husband, Milton J. Budlong, is a matter of only a few hours.

"I have accepted a written invitation to return to my husband," she said, speaking over a long-distance telephone wire from New York.

In the Superior Court at Newport, a few days ago, Mrs. Budlong lost a long and bitterly-waged legal battle to obtain separate support from her husband and custody of her minor children.

The husband not only successfully defended himself, but also got the children, Milton, twelve, and John, nine.

Mrs. Budlong left Newport secretly last night and today telephoned a Boston Evening American reporter on her own initiative. She has hired Max Steuer, attorney in the celebrated Stokes case, to handle reconciliation negotiations for her.

IS NOW IN NEW YORK.

"I've got pretty good news for you," she told the reporter. "I'm giving it to you because you were very polite to me during the Newport trial.

"The good news is that I have accepted a written invitation to return to my husband. I am in constant consultation with Mr. Steuer, and he says there will be no trouble arranging matters.

"I am now at my New York home, No. 115 East Seventy-second street. You may tell my Newport friends that I intend to close up my residence there, for good, as soon as possible. My uncle, George Wilson, and my aunt, Margaret Wilson, are there for the time being.

"If you know of anybody who will take care of my five pet dogs, including a valuable terrier and airdale, please let me know."

The young Budlong children, it was learned, went to New York last night, and the elder child, Frances, twenty-two, is believed to be on her way there. Their father returned to New York several days ago, at the close of the trial.

PRICE OF PLUMBING FIXTURES DROP

Washington, Feb. 13.—The average total wholesale price of six standard plumbing fixtures required for a six-room house has increased a little more than 70 per cent. since 1913, it is shown in a price compilation announced today by the Department of Commerce, on the basis of reports from twelve representative manufacturers and wholesalers. The average wholesale price as reported for January, however, was a decrease from the maximum recorded in June, 1923, which was 93 per cent. above the pre-war 1913 average.

FIFTY ARE INDICTED AS HERRIN RIOTERS

Marion, Ills., Feb. 13.—Williamson County grand jury, investigating Klan, anti-Klan and Labor strike conditions of the past year, in which fourteen were slain, returned a total of fifty indictments, after ten days' deliberation.

For months past the courts were virtually unable to function because of inability to obtain a jury without prejudice or malice.

Most of the indictments returned were for violation of the prohibition law, burglary and larceny. Three were for murder and three for perjury.

FINDS HIS WIFE DEAD WITH ANOTHER MAN

New York, Feb. 13.—When Edward Friend of the Bronx sought his wife, Mary, 29, in a Boston Road rooming house to which she had fled after a quarrel, he found her and Peter Sterlicchi, 22, dead of gas poisoning in her room. Death was believed to have been accidental, caused by monoxide gas escaping from a heater. Sterlicchi had a room in another part of the same house.

PARENTS READY TO FORGIVE

A reconciliation between Mrs. Jessie Budlong and her millionaire husband Milton J. Budlong, is near. Recently the latter won in a separation suit brought by his wife. He was awarded custody of their two children, John nine, and Milton, twelve, (shown above.) The pending reunion plans will bring the family happily together again.

TAKES 13 PRISONERS AWAY ON JINX DATE

Detroit, Feb. 13.—Richard Labelle, Federal deputy marshal, left Detroit today in charge of thirteen prisoners destined for Fort Leavenworth. Transportation arrangements were made before authorities noticed the date or Mr. Labelle declares he would not tempt fate to start with thirteen on Friday, the thirteenth. John Slingsock violated the dry law and got thirteen months.

THIRSTY SOULS LOOK IN VAIN FOR RELIEF

City Hall is said to be drier today than at any time since the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead Act became matters of record, and gloom has settled within the portals like a fog.

Some City Hall employes are disconsolate, as they go about their work, for with the arrest of Boston's first "radio bootlegger" at the very portals of the building, the daily source of supply of the municipal workers has been at least temporarily cut off.

POLICE SEARCH LOCKERS.

To make matters worse, policemen in uniform are turning up at all manner of queer places in City Hall. The locker rooms, in particular, are receiving attention from the hard hearted minions of the law and all this has been brought about by some one of their own number turning informer, the city employes declare.

The trouble started when a man, carrying a radio set, was arrested by the entrance to City Hall at No. 26 Court street, by a member of the liquor squad.

"I've just got a one tube set here and a package of panels for other sets," the man told the officer. He said his name was John Stevens, his age 23 and his address No. 23 St. Botolph street.

The policeman was sceptical about the radio set. He had been "tipped off" in advance as to just what to look for.

"ALKY" IN PANEL.

An inspection of the bundle revealed a sure-enough one-tube radio set. The "panels" however were found to consist of nine pints of "alky splits," a concoction of alcohol and colored water, selling for $1.50 a pint.

Stevens was arrested on a liquor charge and sentenced to three months in the House of Correction. He appealed.

The arrest of the alleged bootlegger was just the beginning of activities. Armed with pass keys, the liquor squad began searching the lockers of the city employes.

They had been told that the bootlegger's practice was to deposit the liquor in the lockers and then collect from the owners of the lockers.

The police are secretive about the entire affair. They refuse to tell what the search of the lockers revealed, but it is an open secret that the boys at City Hall are going without their "snifters" today and the noon "pick-me-ups" will be sadly missing.

SEVENTH ARREST MADE IN DANBURY FUR ROBBERY

Danbury, Ct., Feb. 13.—Police investigating the alleged theft of thousands of dollars worth of hatting fur here, made a seventh arrest when Asher Patish, fur manufacturer was taken into custody charged with receiving stolen goods. SO. BOSTON GIRL IN BEAUTY LIST

South Boston is famous as the home—among other things—of two institutions, beautiful girls and the Evacuation Day parade. The discriminating travel from miles around to gaze at either or both, and consider their time well spent. Today's entrant is a South Boston beauty, Miss Mary Jane Donahue, who is employed by the Employers' Liability Assurance Corp, Ltd., of London, England.

MARGERY REAL PSYCHIC, SAYS J. M. BIRD

Chicago, Feb. 13.—J. Malcolm Bird, managing editor of the Scientific American, declared in an address here before the Medill School of Journalism that psychic phenomena genuinely exist.

Mr. Bird cited the case of "Margery," wife of a Boston physician, as proof of his theories. He disagreed with a committee of five appointed by his magazine to pass judgment on "Margery." Harry Houdini had called her a fraud and three scientists, he said, had refused to risk their scientific reputations, contenting themselves with saying she failed to convince.

"Ectoplasm is a fact," he said. "It issues from openings in the anatomy. Margery', for example, ruptured an eardrum. Ectoplasm appeared at 'Margery's' seances, when the hands and feet of everyone in the room and 'Margery's' head were banded with luminous bands."

"There are real 'spirit voices,' though we have no proof that they are spirits," he said. "There are genuine clairvoyants who can see pictures of the past, present and future. There are spirit writings which display power far beyond the ability of the writer.

"And there are even more surprising genuine phenomena in the field of the objective or physical manifestations."

He said that at least half of the so-called spirit mediums are fraudulent.

LYMAN SCHOOL TRUANTS HELD AS ROBBERS

Picked Up in Auburndale; Are Accused of Breaking Into Two Homes

Admitting they escaped from the Lyman School, two sixteen-year-old boys were arraigned today in Newton District Court on charges of breaking and entering and larceny and held in $1,000 each for a hearing next Monday.

They are Hector Contois of No. 115 Tucker street, Lowell, and Benjamin Ruchinski of No. 274 Pleasant street, Gardiner. They were arrested by Patrolman John Donohue in Auburndale.

The boys confessed to breaking into the house of Mrs. Dora A. Allen No. 1821 Washington street, Auburndale, but declared they took only food, the police say. They are also charged with attempting to break into the residence of Merrill Hanley, No. 2071 Washington street.

They left the Lyman School Wednesday night and walked to Newton. They had planned a tramping trip to the West.

PROTEST NEW RAILROAD LINE IN MAINE

Bangor & Aroostook Tells Washington Canadian Pacific Would Control It

Washington, Feb. 13.—Strong objection to the proposal of the Quebec Extension Railway Company to build 112 miles of new railroad in Maine was expressed by the Bangor & Aroostook Railway Company in a protest filed today with the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The new line is designed to run from Washburn, Me., a point on the Aroostook Valley Railroad line, to the Canadian border. The Bangor & Aroostook protest stated it would be owned or controlled by the Canadian Pacific system. The control would result in tying up the new line, if built, with traffic agreements which would adversely affect interests of the main railroads on the American side, it is claimed in the protest.

Bostonians Luminous in Capital Smartdom

Local Society Interest Centres at Present in Russian Cabaret Set for Tuesday Next

By Betty Alden

BOSTONIANS SHINE LUMINOUSLY in Washington's frivolous atmosphere of Officialdom and Smartdom, so word from the Capital City indicates. There are, for instance, the Keith Merrills, Joseph Clarke Grew, the Godfrey Lowell Cabots and Mrs. Louis Frothingham, whose names appear frequently in the social chronicle.

MR. AND MRS. CABOT are staying the Winter in Washington, and they, with those noted above and hosts of Washingtonians, were prominent in the large gathering which turned out for the Chinese dance fantasy recently staged in the new Auditorium.

NOTHING BUT the most enthusiastic of praise is on every tongue for the fantasy—"A Game of Mah Jongg"—and the record-breaking attendance means a resultantly heavy purse for the Belleau Wood Memorial Association.

THE MARINE BAND, without which no Capital City affair is really complete, played a stirring march, the "Marines of Belleau Wood," written especially for the occasion, as the opening number, and the finale was equally moving, with its Belleau Woods banners and the national flag.

MR. AND MRS. W. DERRING HOWE of Boston and New York have been guests of Mrs. John C. Brooks at the Wardman Park Hotel in Washington. They are en route north from Florida, their Washington visit occasioned primarily by the Wright-Key wedding and all the attending festivities. Mr. Howe was an usher.

OF EXQUISITE blonde coloring is Mrs. Howe, the one-time Polly Brooks, and now much to the fore in the younger married set here in town while Mr. Howe completes a special course of study. She is a belle among the youthful matrons at the senior supper dances. This Winter they are living in town.

THE OPENING NUMBER of the Russian cabaret to be staged in the assembly rooms at No. 46 Beacon street by members of the Russian colony on Tuesday evening next is scheduled for the hour of ten. At nine thirty there is general dancing, and the Russian supper will be served from ten thirty to twelve thirty.

MOST INTERESTING is the program in preparation. There will be Russian dances, the dancers dressed in the bright colors and fanciful headdresses which Americans always associate with a Muscovite festivity.

RUSSIAN MUSIC, both songs and violin, and an orchestra, all appear in the numbers arranged for the cabaret, and Mrs. Plankova does a dance.

NATURALLY THERE IS a keen advance interest in this unusual entertainment. The list of those reserving tables is long and important, with Mr. and Mrs. George Peabody Gardner, Mrs. Edward Jackson Holmes, Mrs. Roger Wolcott therein.

ALSO MR. AND MRS. CHARLES SUMNER BIRD, JR.; Foster Stearns, Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Hemenway, Mrs. John S. Ames, Mrs. George West, Dr. Elizabeth Fameylenko, Madame Beresnof and the Harold Jefferson Coolidges.

MISS LOUISE PAGE sailed away recently on the Conte Russo for a Mediterranean cruise. Miss Page came out a year or two ago and immediately achieved a fine popularity.

MR. AND MRS. RICHARD S. HUMPHREY (Marion Van Buren Emmons) are at the Hotel Ambassador in New York, whither they went to greet Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Emmons, who disembarked from the Olympic Wednesday.

MR. AND MRS. EMMONS, parents of Mrs. Humphrey, are making one of their periodical visits to this country and will come to Boston with their daughter and son-in-law early next week.

DURING THE WINTER and Spring of 1923 the Emmonses had a town address in Marlboro street and lived also at the Hotel Somerset. It was in the late Spring of that year the daughter's marriage to Richard Humphrey was celebrated.

IMMEDIATELY AFTERWARD the elders departed for their English home, Hamble Hants, where a greater portion of their time is spent, and the young people sailed away on a long honeymoon journey to the North Cape and ports in the Land of the Midnight Sun.

BOSTONIANS GONE cruising to the southward include Mr. and Mrs. Guy Murchie, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Little, Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Hobbs and Mrs. Allan B. Farmer.

THEY ARE ALL domiciled at the New Colonial Hotel in Nassau just now, enjoying a late season taste of bathing and golf under tropic skies.

CASE AGAINST PHALANX MEMBERS GOES OVER

The cases against the members of the Phalanx Orchestra Club of No. 2150 Washington street, and seven others arrested in a spectacular raid on the club several weeks ago, were continued today until February 20 by Judge Palmer in Roxbury court.

Sergeant Walsh of the Dudley street station told Judge Palmer that since five of the defendants had been indicted he wished charges against them in the Roxbury Court dropped. Judge Palmer declared he had not the powers of a district attorney and could not nol pros a case.

ELIOT SCORES 'RACE SUICIDE' AMONG ELECT

Deplores Birth Rate Drop in Best Families; Hits at the "Trial Marriages"

"Race suicide is one of the most formidable things we see as we look forward to the future of civilized society," says Dr. Charles Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard, in an article in the Harvard Alumni Bulletin, issued today.

"It is a discouraging fact that the number of children in a family is rapidly diminishing not only in what we call the British-American stock but all the European stocks.

"That it is formidable is only a reason, however, for our doing our utmost to change that state of things. In fact, the formidableness of it summons us all to courageous contention against it, and one of the points at which that contention is most needed is this somewhat new view, held by an unknown fraction of the rising generation of modern youth, that marriage is perhaps not the most important event in life.

MARRIAGE VITAL EVENT.

"I hope you all realize that there is no career for a woman which compares in lasting influence, in satisfaction, in hopefulness, in all the rewards of right living, with that of the mother of a family.

"Marriage is the most important event in life.

"After full experience and an unusually long period of observation, I believe that marriage and the natural, normal result of marriage—the birth and bringing up of children—is infinitely the best career for women, and married life the best life for men.

"We hear much in these days of marriages entered into lightly and unadvisedly, of trial engagements and even trial marriages, of quick divorces and quicker remarriage, of children who spend part of each year with their mother and part with their divorced father — the parents having no dealings with each other—of children whose manners to their parents show no reverence, of parents who pursue their own pleasures without regard to their duties to their children, and of strictly brought up sons and daughters who suddenly run away from their parents' home to marry depraved or mercenary persons.

LOVE OF CHILDREN.

"These unwelcome social symptoms suggest strongly that the subject on which I am speaking—marriage the most important event in life—is a timely one, because the remedy for the bad tendencies I have just mentioned lies in the exaltation and consecration of marriage and family life.

"We may all gain courage for new struggles by remembering that primitive man developed by slow stages into the barbarous, and thence into the civilized in strict proportion to the growth of marital love and tenderness, and of like affections in and towards children.

PAYSON SMITH LAUDS BOYS OF PRESENT DAY

Auburn, Me., Feb. 13.—"The present day criticism of youth is not fair," said Dr. Payson Smith, commissioner of education of Massachusetts, at a county teachers convention here. "Young people of today, contrary to the often expressed remarks of their elders, are more capable, franker and more promising than the boys and girls of a generation ago.

"Take the average boy of 16 and the readiness with which he adapts himself to the radio. The average boy of high school age can, as a rule, tell his elders a great deal about the radio, its construction and method of working."

Continued seasonal weather was promised today by the forecasters. "Fair tonight and Saturday; slightly colder Saturday; fresh southwest, shifting to northwest winds," was the forecast for Boston and vicinity. Northern New England can expect cloudy weather today and tomorrow with somewhat lower temperatures accompanied by moderate to fresh west and northwest winds and snow flurries.

World Made Better by Acts Like This!

The night was damp and murky, especially underfoot.

And Boston Elevated Conductor No. 3384 stationed at Kendall square had stood with his feet in the mud for a long time.

And had answered 9,999 foolish questions with smiling good nature.

The climax came when a flapper emerged from the subway, gazed uncertainly around and approaching Conductor 3384, asked: "Where is the subway back to Boston?"

The conductor laughed. "What did you do. Go past your stop?"

With a foolish grin the flapper admitted it.

"Well, you go right across the street where you see the two white lights," came the detailed explanation, "go down the stairs and tell the girl that you passed your stop. She'll let you off paying another dime.

"Tell her I sent you."

"Thank you," said the flapper. "Not at all," replied the smiling official. "Lots of people do it."

Every day many little kindnesses like this are done, but the sad part of it is that those who do them pass unrecited by the people who saw the good deed done. If you see some one do a favor for a stranger, or some little act of goodwill, such as a policeman helping an aged lady across a busy street, send it to the City Editor of the Boston Evening American your account of it.

It is pleasing to everybody to note some friendly act, and probably much appreciated by the doer when he sees that his favor has been noticed. If you cannot get the name of the person and he has a car conductor's number of a taxi-driver's badge—all according to what occupation he pursues—send that number in.

DON'T SEND KNOCKS.

DUVAL THREATENS SUIT AGAINST DANCER

New York, Feb. 13.—H. Gordon Duval, head of the Park Avenue Association, intimated that criminal action might be taken against Ivy St. Claire, dancer in "Artists and Models" who has brought suit for $100,000 against him, alleging breach of promise to marry her.

Mr. Duval denied that he had ever given cause for the suit and scouted the idea that he had left Miss St. Claire a mental wreck.

"Ivy St. Claire is the merest of abstract acquaintances," he said, "and is obviously seeking publicity at my expense."

CHARGES HOOVER TRIES TO RULE AGRICULTURE

Washington, Feb. 13.—The charge that Secretary Hoover "is seeking to dominate the agriculture of America," was made before the House Agricultural Committee today by Charles E. Hearst of Iowa, chairman of the Legislative Committee of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

SECOND DEATH IN BARRE, VT., EXPLOSION

Barre, Vt., Feb. 13.—The second death as the result of a gas explosion which wrecked a six-family tenement house near the gas works occurred early at the Barre Hospital, when Miss Lea Zaili, aged 19, succumbed to her injuries.

The girl was passing the house when the explosion literally blew the four walls of the building into the street. Miss Zaili was buried in the wreckage and was so badly crushed about the legs that her left leg was amputated shortly after she was removed to the hospital. She failed to rally from the shock.

Enrico Marzorati, whose wife was instantly killed when buried in the wreckage of the building, is himself in serious condition at the hospital. Miss Alice Zoira and Miss Mary Ottanolli, who were in the house when the explosion occurred, and both of whom were badly injured, are expected to recover.

Investigation of the authorities has shown that the explosion occurred when Mrs. Marzorati carried a lighted lamp into the gas filled cellar.

CIRCUS TIGER KILLS GIRL TRAINER AT CARNIVAL

Manila, Feb. 13.—Crashing through the steel bars that separated his girl trainer, putting him through his act, at a circus of a Manila carnival show a tiger killed a young woman. A Filipino detective among the spectators shot and killed the maddened beast just as it was leaping from the stage into the midst of the crowd.

200 Barrels of Beer Seized

Worcester, Feb. 13.—With a warrant issued by Federal Commissioner Walsh of Lowell special agents from the office of A. M. Stroup, divisional chief of prohibition enforcement, raided the Worcester Products Company plant and seized 200 barrels of beer alleged to contain 3 per cent. alcohol. The concern was formerly the Worcester Brewing Corporation and Stroup charges it has been flooding the East with beer of illegal strength. The raid was a surprise to local federal agents and police. The concern had a permit to produce "near beer" up to about a year ago, but it was revoked.

STUDENTS TOLD TO BREAK IN PRISON

commission to the Pil Gimma Pi Society, according to their friends.

The task set for them was to break into the Essex County House of Correction in Lawrence, but not being properly equipped for the work, their act was a lamentable "flop," and they are correspondingly desolate.

To be sure, as some of their friends pointed out, they did succeed in getting into the Lawrence police station, but it was not the same thing.

NEEDS TECHNIQUE.

It is easy enough to get into a house of correction if you know the ropes, but it requires a certain technique, such as the ordinary Northeastern University student does not possess.

Furthermore the boys' instructions specifically stated they were to break into the institution, which implies an entry by force and without the knowledge of the officials and guards.

To provide against their detention, Rae and Cranshaw were given a note to a Mr. Simonson, one of the deputies at the House of Correction.

Armed with this note and two chisels, which they were to use as minutes, the pair were taken to Lawrence early today, and left to their own devices.

CAME A PAUSE.

They proceeded to the House of Correction on Auburn street, and were then given to pause, as it were. For the formidable, steel-studded oak doors and stone walls of the institution did not appear to be just the sort of barriers through which entrance could be forced with a chisel.

While they were deliberating over the problem, a policeman appeared and took them ignominiously to Lawrence headquarters. There they were questioned by Capt. Carl Kilpatrick, to whom they told their story and displayed the note to Mr. Simonson.

Believing the students better off under the protection of the police for a time, Capt. Kilpatrick held them until six o'clock, when they were permitted to depart.

was flooded and the motors put out of commission.

At Montpelier, Vt., damage caused by the flood is estimated at $60,000. The chief damage in that city was to the Bailey Block, where an underground basement wall collapsed, causing a gas explosion in which two men were injured.

Boats plied the flooded streets furnishing the only means of transportation.

The danger of a disastrous flood from the overflowing of the Merrimack river has been temporarily averted at least, according to officials of Manchester, N. H., mills, by the sharp drop in temperature. If cool weather continues, they say, that stream may not break through its covering of ice.

MUCH DAMAGE CAUSED.

The Pemigewasset river was today 15 feet above its normal level having risen 10½ inches during the night. The stream left its banks at Enfield, Lebanon, Nasoona and other New Hampshire cities, causing extensive damage to cellars and houses.

The Boston & Maine was also forced to discontinue service from Bristol to Franklin, N. H. The tracks at some places along that line were four feet under water.

The old covered bridge at Bristol, it is feared, will be carried away, as there is an enormous collection of ice just above it.

The situation at Woodsville, N. H., where the Connecticut River is nine feet above normal, two feet higher than yesterday, had improved with the drop in temperature and the end of the three-day rain fall.

That stream was almost clear of ice and there was little danger of ice jams forming.

DYNAMITE ICE JAMS.

Dynamite is being used to clear highways blocked by ice packs thrown up by the river. Damage to the Boston & Maine roadbed at Cherry Mountain, N. H., which was repaired yesterday, was again incurred during the night.

Colebrook, N. H., was today clearing its streets of huge ice cakes carried into the city on the flood waters yesterday. Danger to bridges had been averted, it was believed.

Ice in the Deerfield river at Shelburne Falls has broken up and the prospect of saving the iron bridge there is good.

Water several feet deep was reported in the streets of East Charlemont. An automobile, caught in an ice jam on one of the streets was deserted by its owner.

Telephone and telegraph poles and many trees were carried away when the ice banked up ten feet high along some parts of the river. Sections of the highway bordering the river are impassable.

ALARM IN LAWRENCE.

Although officials of mills in Manchester and other northern textile cities were optimistic today over the improvement in the situation, Lawrence mill operators were apprehensive over what effect a breaking up of the ice in the Merrimack would have there.

The water is steadily rising and they fear the covering of ice on the river may yield to the pressure.

Officials of the Essex Company have kept in touch with New Hampshire points regarding the rapid rise in the river, and they fear an overflowing of its banks at Lawrence would cause serious damage to mill property.

The Indian river at Nashua had subsided somewhat, but the Coontcook River overflowed at Henniker, N. H. The public utilities dam at Bristol was successfully holding the great volume of water pouring into the two-mile mill pond there.

Residents along some sections of the Pemigewasset river have left their homes through fear of the constantly rising waters.

One of the unusual features of the flood is that along some of the tributaries of the Merrimack houses have changed color.

There is a noticeable odor of sulphur, or some other chemical, which has caused many sore throats. No explanation has been found for the strange condition.

Michael Leonsing and his family, living on an island in the Piscataquog River near Manchester were forced to flee to the mainland for safety when the water flooded the island.

Trolley cars and auto traffic in Northampton were rerouted when it was discovered that the flood had thrown out of line one of the piers of the Wright avenue bridge over Mill river. Cellars throughout the lower section of the city were flooded and hundreds of telephone lines were put out of commission when the water worked its way into the conduits carrying the telephone cables.

Jingle, Jingle, Jingle Away
And earn your $25 each day.

SIXTEEN PRIZES.

Sixteen prizes to be given away each day. A capital prize of $25, and fifteen $1 awards.

Everybody is eligible to join. Everybody is invited. Everybody is capable.

You are not asked to write a whole poem. All you are asked to do is write one line, snappy and happy. It must rhyme and have sense, and surely be funny.

Four lines of verse will be offered you each day. Yours is to fill in the last line, and sent in your daily ticket for the $25.

Every day $40 will be given away. It means $240 a week. Over $1,000 a month.

A jingle a day will keep the blues away.

Everybody has some talent for versifying. Everybody has at some time had the urge to pun in rhyme. Here's a chance to get it out of your system, have a grand old time and line your bankroll.

Many of you have been in a Limerick contest before. You have found the going easy and cashed in heavily.

The Limerick presented in the American from day to day beginning Monday will be the merriest and cleverest ever.

INTERESTS WHOLE FAMILY.

A game bound to interest and hold the whole family from Little Willie or Mary up to grandpa and grandma.

There will be no limit in the way of contributions. The rules will permit you as many as seven. If any one of those you submit is better than the rest received, the $25 given for the day's jingle goes to you.

Ever hear of any author getting $25 a line? And poetry, at that. But the Boston Evening American offers that amount to its readers for just one line of poetry. Isn't the offer so tantalizing that one can't help breaking into poetry?

Start in with the first limerick that appears Monday.

And keep going every day a limerick appears.

Sixteen persons are given a chance to share in the profits of the muse.

Three days will be allowed for the contestants to get each day's "Last Line" into the hands of the Limerick contest editor. Each edition a week later will carry the winners of that particular day's limerick filler.

A complete list of the rules governing the Limerick contest will appear with the publication of the first limerick.

Watch out for Limerick No. 1.

Easy verses, easy rhyming, easy cash!

20 LEAP INTO RIVER AS BOAT GOES DOWN

who discovered the boat going down, gave the alarm and the last of the crew barely had time to jump over the side before the unwieldy craft went down in ten feet of water.

The dredge, in charge of Frank Small of Dorchester, was engaged in operations off a new pier being constructed in the river. The dredge is one of the largest in use about the harbor.

When the men retired for the night everything was apparently in good shape. It is believed, however, that seams in the hull became open.

The night fireman noticed the dredge sinking by the stern. He ran into the bunk room and aroused the sleepers and then made his own way off the dredge.

Two small boats were attached to the dredge and it was in these the men escaped. So rapidly did the dredge sink that the members of the crew had no time to rescue their effects.

The twenty men landed at a nearby wharf and later they made their way to their homes or to rooming houses in taxicabs.

According to H. T. Gerrish, manager of the Gerrish Dredging Co., it will be a week or two before the dredge can be raised.

HOLDUP FOILED

pelled him to drive away, at the point of a revolver.

At the corner of Ellery and Northampton streets his unwelcome fares got out. One of the bandits, with a revolver concealed in a handkerchief in his hand, ordered Glynn not to stop until he was out of sight.

Glynn made his way to a telephone and informed the police where he had left the holdup men.

The descriptions of the bandits are almost identical. Both are said to be about 25 years old, of light complexion and weighing about 145 pounds. They were light colored caps, powder-blue overcoats and small bow ties.

Ames' home is at No. 79 Tremont street, Winthrop. After his escape from the holdup men he went calmly about his duty of paying off about forty stevedores.

WOMAN CHASES THIEVES INTO COP'S ARMS

Prisoners Jailed After Fleeing With Coat From East Boston Home

The persistence of Mrs. Josephine Joyce of No. 14 Princeton street, East Boston, who pursued two thieves for nearly a mile, after they had stolen a coat from her apartment, was revealed in East Boston Court today.

The men, who ran into the arms of a policeman, were convicted of larceny and given sentences to Deer Island. They were John T. Cameron, twenty-eight years of N. of Avon place, Charlestown, and Vincent Dwyer, twenty-seven years of No. 147 Meridian street, East Boston.

Mrs. Joyce was admiring a fur coat garment, when she saw two men leaving the house with her coat under the arm of one of them. She gave chase and pursued the men to Central square, where they were arrested by Patrolman William J. Hart.

Both were given sentences of two months, to which was added two months for Cameron on a previous suspended sentence and one month for Dwyer for the same reason.

SOUTH END MAN HELD AS THEFT ACCESSORY

As a result of a raid on a tailor shop at No. 360 Tremont street, South End, today, the police arrested the proprietor, Jacob Lichtenstein, on charge of being a fence for thieves who have been looting stores of suburban merchants.

Acting on a tip from a woman, officers of the East Dedham street station entered the tailor shop, where they claim to have recovered clothing stolen from a Brockton store, together with a quantity of automobile radiator caps.

Lichtenstein, who is sixty-eight years old, said he was holding the property for two young men who represented themselves as salesmen. He said they had promised to call for the goods within a few days.

Police action was taken, when a woman, who refused to give her name, telephoned that she had seen two young men leave a bundle in the doorway of the tailor shop. Lichtenstein was arraigned in Municipal Court charged with receiving stolen property valued at about $1,000.

CANADA SEIZES U. S. SHIP IN FAR NORTH

Craft Held for Non-Payment of Fees; Skipper Mushes 450 Miles to Protest

Anchorage, Alaska, Feb. 13.—The Anchorage Times has received a report that Canadian customs officials and mounted police have seized for alleged non-payment of duties the American owned and outfitted schooner Maid of Orleans, the only vessel to reach Herschel Island, 1,600 miles northeast of Point Barrow, Alaska, in a year.

Captain Christian Klingenburg, veteran far north fur trader and skipper of the Orleans, was reported mushing overland to Fairbanks, 450 miles southwest of Herschel Island, en route to Ottawa, Ont., to obtain release of the vessel.

The vessel was seized, the Times was informed, when Captain Klingenburg refused duty payments on the contention that under an old Arctic law a trader was exempt.

The Maid of Orleans was outfitted last Summer in Seattle. At Point Barrow Canadian customs officers were alleged to have demanded duty, but permitted the vessel to sail under convoy of a mounted policeman for Victoria Land to land supplies for the captain's family and settlers.

The policeman disappeared after the last was seen walking on the deck of the schoony.

The advices of the Times said an investigation into the officers' disappearance had been ordered.

Never Let a Cold Get a Start

Vapors Check a Cold Overnight

There are many ways to treat a cold, but only one DIRECT way—with vapors that can be inhaled.

Vapors penetrate immediately into every corner of the air passages and lungs, soothing and healing with every breath.

Vicks is so remarkably successful in treating cold troubles because it acts like "a vapor lamp in salve form."

When rubbed over throat and chest the body heat releases vapors of Menthol, Camphor, Eucalyptus, Thyme and Turpentine.

At the same time Vicks is absorbed through and stimulates the skin like a poultice or plaster.

This double, direct action often checks the worst cold overnight.

NEW CODE FOR ADVERTISING PLANNED

National Dry Goods Men for Plain and Honest Labelling of Wares

New York, Feb. 13 (Universal)—At the fourteenth annual convention of the National Retail Dry-goods' Association, which closes tonight at the Pennsylvania Hotel, department store owners throughout the United States adopted a new code for advertising.

It provides that advertising must not only be truthful, but at all times must avoid being anything other than plain language of sincerity. Superlatives are to be avoided. Sales advertising must plainly state the facts regarding the merchandise only.

Statements regarding the quantity of merchandise, such as "million dollar sale," must be supplemented by accurate descriptions of merchandise so complete that the reader may determine the true nature of materials, contents, styles, workmanship and other details of the articles advertised.

All imperfect goods must be so labelled. Illustrations must be exact and articles which are not on special sale must not be advertised as part of a sale announcement.

Officers of the National Retail Association were elected today as follows:

President, Herbert J. Tily of Strawbridge & Clothier, Philadelphia; vice-president for New England, Arthur L. Aldred of Gladding Dry-goods Company of Providence; vice-president of the Middle Atlantic States, John S. Burke of B. Altman Company, New York; vice-president for the South, W. E. RIDING MASTER SUES PARENTS OF HEIRESS

Declares Bride, While "Imprisoned," Was Induced to Renounce Him

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 13.—A court battle looms for the love of Mrs. Emily Forster Bradley, eighteen-year-old heiress, who eloped to Waukegan, Ill., with her riding tutor, Jack W. Bradley, manager of the Beorg Riding Club.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Forster, parents of the bride, submitted to service in a $250,000 suit for alleged alienation of affections which had been brought against them by their new son-in-law.

The complaint charges the parents with inducing the girl "by threats of disinheritance and false representations as to social distinctions" and "while imprisoned in their home" to renounce her desire to go with her husband.

Reports from the Forster home indicated that the rich lumberman is determined upon no compromise of any kind with the riding master

8 HELD IN FAKE LIQUOR LABEL ROUNDUP

Dry forces in Boston are satisfied that with the arraignment of eight men charged with the manufacture and distribution of fake whiskey labels, the fake label ring in New England is broken.

These men, taken in a series of raids, are accused of having more than a million counterfeit liquor labels in their possession, together with outer wrappings, bottle caps and other devices, all in perfect imitation of the material used by the most famous manufacturers of spirits in Europe and Canada.

The men arraigned were:

Morris Knoring, 23 years, married, of Elm Hill avenue, Roxbury; Abraham Knoring, 38 year, of Pasadena road, Dorchester; Israel Knoring, 44 years, of Normandy street, Dorchester; Morris Singer, 51 years, of Ormond street, Dorchester; Myer Singer, 23 years, of Westmore road, Dorchester; Harry Singer, 19 years, of Ormond street; Charles Anderman, 21 years, of Line street, Cambridge, and Max Anderman, 22 years, of Line street, Cambridge.

The Knorings and the Singers are indicted on charges of forging and uttering liquor labels, counterfeiting labels and conspiracy to sell and deliver them.

TRAFFIC RELIEF PLAN TO COST $25,000,000

A $25,000,000 street improvement project, designed to greatly reduce traffic congestion in Boston, was recommended to the Legislature today by the Special Recess Commission on the Intermediate Thorough fare.

The report, one of the most important in recent years on downtown traffic relief, contains many of the improvements recommended by Mayor Curley in modified form, and is said to have the approval of a majority of business men.

It was filed by Chairman Henry I. Harriman of the Metropolitan Planning Division; Chairman Thomas F. Sullivan of the Boston Transit Commission; Chairman Michael H. Sullivan of the Boston Finance Commission; Chairman John H. Noyes of the Boston Street Commission, and Chairman Frederick H. Fay of the Boston Planning Board.

A plan for financing the expenditure was worked out in a novel way, which it is believed will carry the whole burden of cost through a period of years without any undue strain upon current tax revenues.

The plan provides for a new street from Charles River dam to Causeway and Staniford streets, to be 100 feet wide; widening of Merrimac street to eighty-five feet from Causeway street to Haymarket square; extension of Cross street to an eighty-five foot thoroughfare from Haymarket square to State street; a new street, eighty-five feet wide, from Kneeland street to Federal street; widening of Albany street to 100 feet from Kneeland street to Broadway; widening of Brattle street on the northerly side to 80 feet, widening of Exchange street on the southerly side to 54 feet, and the extension of Brattle street from Washington street to Faneuil Hall to a width of 100 feet.

This last improvement, it was stated, will give an adequate entrance to the market district, and also will give Faneuil Hall the dignified setting which its traditions demand.

Referring to re-routing traffic which would result from the improvements, the report stated it seemed inevitable that Tremont street and Washington street would comprise one pair of one-way streets. A second pair would be made up of Federal and Exchange streets.

GLYNN'S AIDE LAUDS MEDAL FOR FIREMEN

Men Pleased at Recognition of Merit, Veteran Frank B. Cook Declares

From the rank and file of the Boston fire department today came words of praise for the Boston Evening American's plan to reward two fire heroes each year with diamond medals for meritorious service, and to give $100 to the wife, mother, sister or next of kin of the hero.

Frank B. Cook

Private Frank B. Cook, a noted hero, former president of the Russell Fire Club, director of the Massachusetts Permanent Firemen's Association, and a member of the Boston fire department for the past fifteen years, congratulated the Boston Evening American on behalf of the men of the department on its medal plan.

NOTHING BUT PRAISE.

Private Cook, who is aide to Fire Commissioner Theodore A. Glynn, said: "In visiting different parts of the city daily with the fire commissioner in the course of my duty, I hear nothing but favorable comment from every fireman in regard to the Boston Evening American's plan.

"As a member of the rank and file of the Boston fire department, I am more than pleased to learn that this great newspaper is to award two medals each year for the most meritorious service performed. In this respect I am not alone, for as a matter of fact every member of the department, including officers, have nothing but praise for the idea.

"It isn't the medals that the firemen look for so much as it is to realize that their efforts are appreciated in the protection of life and property.

"The fact that the Boston Evening American will have an unbiased board to decide to whom the medals will be awarded, is equally meritorious. This great newspaper with its undisputed news sources has always been in a position to chronicle the news of the day to the public. To have a fireman's efforts make public is a realization that he is appreciated by his fellowman.

GIVES MEN CREDIT.

"The awards of these medals will have a tendency to call to the attention of the public the many acts of service rendered by the fire department which ordinarily the average citizen knows little or nothing about.

"Furthermore, the average citizen knows little or nothing of the life of a fireman, and it is only through the medium of the press that justice can be presented to the citizens of the community, and as the Boston Evening American is in a position to know the various acts that are performed by the members of the fire department from time to time, it will be a great factor in enlightening the public upon the many-sided phases of the duties of a fireman."

Now the Girls Are Wearing Nightcaps

London, Feb. 12.—A revival of the nightcap for the smart modern woman is an essential of present day hair dressing, say the makers of modes in London.

Shingled or bobbed hair while very attractive, soon gets in disorder while sleeping and nightcaps are being increasingly adopted to keep tresses as the hairdresser suits them.

The wearing of nightcaps also means so many less visits to the hairdresser and a consequent saving to the society woman.

JERITZA WON'T SING AGAIN WITH GIGLI

Diva Serves an Ultimatum on Opera Company After Row With Tenor

New York, Feb. 13.—Mme. Maria Jeritza, Metropolitan star, and Signor Beniamino Gigli, temperamental tenor, will never sing together again, if operatic tongue waggings are to be credited.

A story that Mme. Jeritza would be accompanied by her husband, Baron Leopold Popper, in all future appearances at the Metropolitan was also told with conviction today in quarters supposed well informed.

An outburst of temperament involving the two celebrities which was said to have been responsible for Mme. Jeritza's appearing in tears to take her curtain call after the performance of "Tosca" Tuesday night, is also declared to have led to an understanding between her and the Metropolitan management that she will not be asked again to appear with Signor Gigli.

While at first the management today made explicit denials of both stories, their reiteration gathered force until, in an apparent effort to stem the tide, Metropolitan officials issued a statement declaring that Jeritza and Gigli will sing together next year.

Jeritza's final appearance this season will be next Wednesday in "Tannhauser." Gigli is not in the cast.

CHARLES FRIEDMAN HELD IN AUTO THEFT

Charles Friedman, director of a Boston orchestra, was held in $2,000 bonds for the Grand Jury when arraigned today charged with larceny of an automobile. The cases against Roy Lowe, Ray R. Stewardson and Lewis J. Calabrase, members of other Boston orchestras, accused of receiving stolen automobiles, were continued until February 18 at the request of their counsel.

DIRECT VOTING FOR PRESIDENT IS URGED

Would Mean Better Type of Candidates, Argument at Legislative Hearing

Nominees for the office of vice-president of the United States in the opinion of Stephen T. Byington of Ballardvale, are generally men of mediocre ability.

Byington's views came out today at a hearing before the Legislative Committee on Elections while pleading for a law by which presidential and vice-presidential candidates would be voted for directly by the people at the State elections.

"Better candidates would be chosen if a direct expression of the will of the people were secured than is now possible under the convention system," the speaker declared.

I want you to try it. I want you to see the luster that it adds to hair. I would not take a fortune for what it has done for mine.

I cannot tell you the secrets of its wizard-like results. They have never been told to me. But these results will amaze and delight you. Ask any toilet counter for Edna Wallace Hopper's Fruity Shampoo, and you'll get exactly what I use. The price is 60 cents. Have a Care! This Is Friday, the 13th

Man is born to sorrow as the sparks fly upward.
A week ago it was Doomsday. And today it's Friday, the Thirteenth.

It's almost too much for weak human nature to stand.

Due to a slight but fortunate miscalculation, we were delivered from the chaos of the end of the world, but no one can ward off the terrors of Black Friday.

For this is Misfortune's day and it behooves mortals to walk softly with fingers crossed, that they may not draw down upon their heads the wrath of this particular malignant spirits.

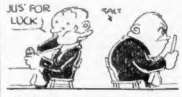
Herewith are a few instructions, which, if carefully followed, may serve to avert catastrophes, but it is doubtful.

HOW TO DODGE TROUBLE.

First, in arising, be sure to get out of bed on the right side. This is important as the day should be started properly. If you get out of bed on the wrong side, you may step on a tack or something.

Don't stand in front of an open window to do your Daily Dozen. In addition to the danger of contracting pneumonia, you might get arrested.

In going down town, don't run for a street car or train. Autoists are particularly savage and they will be sure to knock you off.



Don't get your feet wet, you may get chilblaines.

Be careful what you eat. Fish is recommended.

By no means walk under a ladder. This is one of Misfortune's favorite traps. There's usually a Czecho-Slovakian window cleaner at the top with a bucket of water or a loose-handled brush, Shun ladders.

If you drive an automobile, use every precaution. There are so many things that happen to motorists we haven't the heart to mention them.

AVOID STRANGERS.

Don't speak to strange women—or men, or vice versa. You may be mistaken for the Lone Wolf or a bobbed-hair bandit.

If you have any momentous business to transact, such as going to jail or getting married, put it off. Also executions and hangings are peculiarly fatal today.

Beware the Demon Rum. Don't buy liquor unless you have known the bootlegger since prohibition, and have had his product analyzed. Green Scotch, "cut by scientific formula," is very deadly on Friday, the Thirteenth.

Be very careful in crossing the streets.

And if you stay abed all day to avoid danger, don't smoke cigarettes unless you have a fire extinguisher at hand.

SNUB TO QUEEN OF CARNIVAL STIRS FRIENDS

Augusta, Me., Feb. 13.—The annual State Winter Carnival is over but the dissension and ill-feeling aroused in the capital over the alleged snubbing of the Carnival Queen, an eighteen-year-old factory girl, will keep the city stirred up for many months to come.

As an upshot of the alleged shabby treatment the carnival officials recorded little Yvonne Fauchar, the Queen, the French residents of the Sand Hill section will stage a Carnival of their own, starting March 2. Miss Fauchar will be queen of this carnival and the obeisance she will receive and the attentions that will be bestowed upon her will make up, in a measure, for the slight she suffered in the annual State Carnival.

SNUBBED, SAY FRIENDS.

Miss Fauchar, who works as a cloth inspector in a local mill, was selected by popular vote from among seven candidates.

It is claimed by the girl's friends that after she was duly crowned queen, she was promptly snubbed by the officials of the carnival and that members of the various committees refused to escort her to the various events, and even refused to dance with her.

CALLED UNINTENTIONAL.

A youthful Sir Galahad, Albert Cloutier, son of a merchant, although having no official part in the program, sprang into the breach and escorted the queen about during the three days of the carnival. As a reward, young Cloutier will be crowned king of the Sand Hill carnival.

Officials of the carnival declare that, if Miss Faucher was slighted, the slight was unintentional.

As a result of the trouble it is likely a new method of selecting the carnival queen will be tried next year.

AMERICAN COLLEGES FOR WOMEN DECLARED BEST

Miss Edith Margaret Smallt of the Wellesley College department of reading and speaking has returned from an ight months' visit to Europe with renewed appreciation of the opportunities afforded women in American colleges.

English colleges, she stated, are open only to women especially interested in education, and to the scholar. Therefore, only a few women go to college, she says. Miss Smallt spent the greater part of the Summer studying at Oxford.

THIEVES' ACCUSATION DOUBTED, MAN FREED

New York, Feb. 13.—Mark Wollin, a Nassau street jeweler, arrested as the directing head of a $100,000 jewelry robbery, was acquitted today by order of General Sessions Judge Collins. James Burns and Harry Chance, who recently pleaded guilty, testified that Wollin planned the robbery and appropriated most of the loot. Judge Collins held that their testimony needed corroboration.

Separate Road for Motor Busses and Vans Demanded

Springfield, Feb. 13.—Hogging of State highways by huge interstate motor busses, trucks and vans was characterized as a menace, and a movement looking to the closing of State roads to these vehicles was given impetus at a meeting of the Springfield Motor Club, which would have the State highway officials compel the heavier trucks to travel on special roads.

The club also endorsed the move for compulsory insurance and publication again of a book containing the names and addresses of all automobile owners throughout the State.

BATHING GIRLS TO FEATURE LEGION SHOW

Mitchell Post, No. 140, to Produce Revue at Nantasket Tonight

Bathing beauties, scores of pretty girls, latest songs and snappy costumes will be offered by the Winter colony of Hull and Nantasket tonight when the first show of the Follies of the American Legion, Oscar Smith Mitchell Post, No. 140, will be presented at the Municipal Building, Atlantic Hall, Nantasket.

The first part of the show is straight musical comedy. A French cabaret scene and a minstrel setting make up the latter part of the performance.

Many local favorites have important parts in the production. Mrs. Gladys Wellman, a former soloist at St. Phillips Church Roxbury, has a specialty part. This young matron is a leader of the younger social set of the Green Hill section whose voice has been pronounced perfect in range and quality.

Paul Frederick Dully, Robert J. Kelley, Jr., and James Bacon have been assigned to important singing roles in the production.

The show is under the direction of Joseph Crowson and will be repeated tomorrow evening.

POLICE RESCUE SUICIDE FROM HANGING

East Boston Man Jumps From Window After Being Cut Down, Will Recover

Manuel Lopez, twenty-one years old, of No. 168 Sumner street, East Boston, has a tough neck.

As a result, his effort to end his life by hanging failed, and he is now under observation at the Psychopathic Hospital.

Lopez occupies a room on the fourth floor of the house. Persons in the street below were shocked when they saw Lopez dangling from a fourth floor window, held by a rope about his neck.

Patrolman Poor and Foley of Station 7 pulled Lopez back into the room and found him little the worse for his experience. The youth became hysterical, however, and took a high dive from an open window. He again escaped serious injury and was overpowered and removed to the hospital.

CANADA FIRM TO PIPE PULP OVER BORDER

Plans Novel Scheme to Evade Duty; Also Will Build $2,500,000 Mill

Augusta, Me., Feb. 13.—The piping of paper pulp across the international border from Canada into Maine to escape the heavy duty imposed by the American tariff on finished products of paper, is the latest project of one of the largest paper manufacturers of Canada.

The Fraser Companies, Ltd., of Canada, is back of the project. The corporation plan to erect paper mills on the American side of the St. John River at a cost of $2,500,000. There is no duty on paper pulp and it is planned to carry pulp for the mills from Canada, in two 16 inch steel pipes.

It is planned to run these pipe lines over the Inter-national Bridge at Madawaska and agents of the paper company are now in Augusta seeking permission from the state to run the pipe lines over the bridge.

The pulp, carried in the pipes, would weigh less than if carried in cans of water, the paper experts point out, and the bridge structure could carry the pipes without danger.

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

When Back Hurts Flush Your Kidneys With Jad Salts

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, sometimes get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, nervousness, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean and the surest relief is to drink plenty of water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. The famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is intended to flush clogged kidneys and help stimulate them to activity. It also helps to neutralize the acids in the urine so they no longer irritate, thus helping to relieve bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everybody should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in trying to correct kidney trouble while it is only trouble. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least once a year.

John J. Galvin, president of the Tremont Oil Company of Lynn, is suing for a divorce from his wife (above), Mrs. Mary E. Galvin. Witnesses said they saw Mrs. Galvin and William A. Reynolds, co-respondent, in close embrace on a Blue Hills road.

PRINCIPALS IN GALVIN CASE TO TESTIFY

With all the principals scheduled to go on the witness stand today in the case of the divorce action of Joseph J. Galvin, Lynn Harvard boxing promoter, against his wife Mrs. Mary E. Galvin, the couple spent a night at the Medford Inn, while they also met at a Woodbridge Hotel in Dover, square somerville, witnesses said long before court opened.

Both Galvin and his wife and William A. Reynolds, named by the husband as the corespondent, will testify not only in the husband's divorce action, but in the wife's separate maintenance suit as well.

Witnesses already have testified to many clandestine meetings between Reynolds and Mrs. Galvin. The couple spent a night at the Medford Inn, while they also met at a Woodbridge Hotel in Dover, square somerville, witnesses said. Joseph W. Sears of Lynn testified that he saw Reynolds drive by the Galvin Summer home in Lynn and signal Mrs. Galvin such an expert that even a home in Lynn and signal. DECLARES THEM SPORT OF FLIERS IN WAR

Washington, Feb. 13.—Claims by General Staff officers that anti-aircraft guns could properly protect the United States from enemy fliers, were ridiculed today by witnesses appearing before the House Committee investigating military aeronautics.

Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, [illegible] was officially credited with many [illegible] during the war, [illegible] that the chief pastime of American [illegible] in the war was going aloft and [illegible] permitting the Germans to shoot at them.

MAYOR, DEFIED, TO FIGHT BIRTH CONTROL

A finish fight between Boston ad[illegible] and Mayor James M. Curley, is in its opening stages.

The Hub men and women who [illegible] engaged in furthering the birth control movement, have arranged for Margaret Sanger to address a public meeting in Boston on the evening of March 2. Mayor Curley has announced that under no circumstances will he permit Mrs. Sanger to speak here and that he will take such measures as it seems necessary to prevent her appearance on a public platform.

Upon defying the mayor, Robert Baldwin, director of the American Civil Liberties League, has announced that he will arrange the platform from which Mrs. Sanger will speak. He declares that Mayor Curley will not have sufficient [illegible] to order his arrest or [illegible] called upon other local leaders of the birth control movement to follow his example.

As a result of this appeal more than a dozen prominent citizens including [illegible] of both sexes, college professors and social leaders have agreed to take their places on the platform with Mrs. Sanger [illegible] delivering her address.

"We will hold this public meeting in a licensed hall in Boston, and I defy Mayor Curley to arrest me," declared Mr. Baldwin, today.

"I prevented Mrs. Sanger from appearing here once before, and I did it again. She will never [illegible] from a public platform in Boston while I am mayor, is the view of the Mayor.

Mrs. Sanger is due to spend March 1, 2 and 3 in Boston, but [illegible] on the evening of March [illegible] she is scheduled to address a [illegible] gathering.

The announcement of her appearance and also the defi of Mayor Curley, orders came at a meeting of the League for Democratic Control held in Hotel Westminster.

The visit of Mrs. Sanger to Boston will be sponsored by John L. Coleman, Mrs. Louisa James, Miss Evelyn Banning, Dr. Alice Hamilton, Miss Alice Stone Blackwell and Mrs. Zara DuPont.

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

TWO POOR DECISIONS ROB BRITISH BOXERS OF CLEAN SWEEP

MITCHELL VICTIM OF JUDGES

By JACK CONWAY

UNCLE SAM and Johnny Bull had plenty.

Their little Canadian cousins had none.

It may have been because it was the first time that your Uncle Sam and Johnny Bull ever sat down at the festive board with an international amateur boxing tournament as the offering. At any rate, the no interested in dishing what was placed before them that they only left a few stray bones for their cousins from Canada.

Twice the Stars and Stripes flattered over the ring at Mechanics Building carrying the name of "One" after a fashion.

And twice the Union Jack came to the rescue.

The Canadians made a game effort to break into the point scoring but were outclassed in every one except one.

The two victories of the British boxers were decisions. George Gregory of England won over George Chabet of Canada in the final of the 135-pound class, while Jack Elliot of England conquered Phil Flanagan by a wide margin in the 16-pound division.

THE twin triumph of the American boxers was due to Johnny Salvo and Joe Mondi. To them were awarded a verdict over Hugh Mitchell, British and Canadian champion who was unbeaten, Mitchell had a lead in the early and should have been declared the winner.

Pat O'Hanrahan, British 147-pound champion, had the margin on Eddie Adonis of this city in the 147-pound division, but the latter caught the eyes of the judges.

The decision in favor of Monte over Mitchell was the big surprise of the show. Mitchell is undoubtedly the greatest amateur heavyweight fighter in the world, and the first two rounds of the final bout, Monte kept rushing his opponent, swinging wildly with both hands. He missed three punches to every one he landed. Meanwhile Mitchell kept shooting sharp, clean blows to the body when at close quarters.

Monte in the last round held Mitchell any better than even during the first two rounds. In the third session, Mitchell boxed a terrific article while Monte was slow as a result of his exertions in the first two chapters. The Olympic champion punched fast and clean and with deadly precision. He also pointed Monte by six to one in the final session. The crowd hooted its disapproval of the verdict in favor of Monte.

A FLASH in the third round was what gave Adonis the verdict over Pat O'Hanrahan in the final of the 147-pound class. In the semi-final, Adonis easily won over Joe Loughlin of Canada, by doing so, he injured his right hand. Before entering the ring for the final match Eddie Black suggested to Adonis' handlers that they inject ether chloride into the boxer's right hand. This was done, thus deadening the pain.

For the first two rounds of his mill with O'Hanrahan, Adonis was forced back. The British champion kept crowding Eddie to the corner with sharp punches to the body. Adonis could not get his left hand to work with his body, so he landed with a couple of right handers to the head.

O'Hanrahan continued to set the pace in the early part of the third frame. At the half way mark Adonis opened up, tossed caution to the winds and rained in a series of left and right hooks to the head and body. This was the part of the crowd and probably had some effect on the judges. The boys are of the opinion that the officials should give an equal amount of credit to each boy who had been done. O'Hanrahan would have been awarded the bout.

NURMI, WITH 3 NEW RECORDS, RUNS AGAIN

[illegible] Feb. 13.—Paavo Nurmi, who shattered three world's records at Boston last night, will race against a select field of Syracuse University runners at Archbold Stadium tonight, in a one-mile handicap event.

Nurmi's new records last night were the 2,000 yard mark, which he reduced from 5:00.45 to 4:53.25; the 2,000 meter mark which he cut from 5:33 to 5:22.5; and the mile and a quarter mark which he dragged from [illegible] to 6:45 and two fifths [illegible] Nurmi had ever been [illegible]

But a short half hour before Nurmi's great run, Willie Ritola his greatest rival and a countryman, [illegible] marks for the two miles, running the distance in 9:03 4-5, shattering the time made by Nurmi only last Saturday at the Wilco games in Brooklyn by the wide margin [illegible] hour and one-fifth seconds.

Babe Ruth Calls in Chiropodist at Hot Springs

By Universal Service.

Hot Springs, Ark., Feb. 13.—Babe Ruth has corns!

When the Babe attempted to put on his golf shoes this morning, for his usual long jaunt over the hills, twenty-seven holes of golf and more running, his feet protested, as feet will do when afflicted.

A hot spot was called by the Rambino, instead of a caddy, and the Babe swears he must have lost a couple of pounds in the ensuing [illegible] he dragged and pulled his way around the course was to play barnyard golf, which is the pitching of horseshoes to a stake, a game in which Ruth can be assured of much more competition here, about than in hitting home runs.

The Northeastern University track squad will clash with Worcester Polytechnic Institute in the Y. M. C. A. gym tomorrow at 12:30 p. m. This will be the first dual meet that the Back Bay boys have held this season in the home gym. In the event B. A. A. games Worcester succeeded in winning from them by a narrow margin.

In the field events, both teams have [illegible] men, but [illegible] perhaps a slight edge favoring the Back Bay boys.

A. M. Breive, '27, Waterbury, Connecticut, probably the fastest man on the team, has done a lot of work on indoor sprints, while R. S. Murphy, '27, New Preston, Ct., is a man of middle distance note.

Inside Golf

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 31 Golf Champions, "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

The flat swing, which is the method the fat golfer should adopt and always use, is not a substitute or make-shift method for hitting the golf ball. Some of the best tournament players use it by choice. A very hard ball can be hit with it because the body keeps the same relation to the ball during the moment of impact [illegible] swings, and the more naturally the more part of any swing is accomplished the more perfect one is likely to be. The flat swinger uses the same method with his irons the same as with the woods. The only necessary precaution regarding irons is to see to it that the blade starts slowly and evenly away from the ball and then is kept low to the ground until the pivoting of the body has turned the shoulders well around to the right. Then you break the blade upward snappily with the wrists.

'FAIRWAYS,' GOLF MONTHLY MAKES FIRST APPEARANCE

The Fairways of New England, a monthly golf publication, edited by Larry Paton, has made its first appearance. It goes in for short, snappy and interesting stuff. It plays on the personal end of things rather than on technique.

In the first issue Francis Ouimet has some very bright reminis cences. Bill Garcoon, lawyer, sportsman and president of the Massachusetts Golf Association, gives facts and figures about that busy-growing body. Frank Collins gets some real rumor in a timely cover. And Nick Flatley, who couldn't even take golf seriously, indulges a few opinions that will cheer up the duffer.

SPORT BROADCAST

by JIM MURPHY

THE KICK-BACK

Rough hockey, which cost Leo Hughes of the B. A. A. one of his eyes and injured Howell Van Gerbig so badly that he will be unable to play again this season, has had its effect on attendance at club hockey games as was to be expected. Followers of clean sport will not pay to see one man maim another, while the incidents referred to above did not take place in Boston and Boston players were not the aggressors, this city has felt the kick-back and we have no doubt that Pittsburgh, too, is paying the penalty for the dirty methods employed by its players.

Howie Van Gerbi

Strange to relate, what club hockey is losing, professional and college hockey seems to be gaining for an increased attendance has been noticeable at both of these branches of the ice sport lately. Particularly is the true of professional hockey, and in spite of the lowly position of the Bruins the fans are turning out in large numbers to see them play. Harvard and B. C. are the best college magnets. Boston College will pack the house against any team and Harvard draws tremendous crowds when opposed to her ancient rivals, Princeton and Yale. Tomorrow night's Harvard-Yale game is already a sellout.

DROP THE DEADWOOD

While the Greater Boston Tax Fight League is entering upon a period of economy it might also start a house-cleaning and get rid of some of the "deadwood" that it now harbors within its ranks. More young blood and less of the ancient vintage, more real fighters and less petty quibblers would help this populace. It's a big cry.

Harvard would do well to take a leaf from Coach Porkpie's book. When Coach Pop Lusdur called for crew candidates 400-- responded. Maybe Coach Stevens' remarks will have the effects on the Crimson student body. Stevens publicly exploded the ancient "myth" that only the well-to-do and socially prominent were wanted in the Harvard boat by announcing that any undergraduate able to pull an oar was eligible to try for a place on the crew.

WALTHOUR AND PAL LAP FIELD IN 6-DAY RACE

Chicago, Feb. 13.—In the wildest sprinting of the six-day bicycle race at a Coliseum rink today Walthour and McNamara, American team, lapped the field and were leading at the 100th hour with 1 [illegible] miles, 5 laps and 223 points.

Their gain was the second of the night and came after Brocklejnch and Goosens had placed themselves in a tie with the Americans, who had taken the lead in earlier jaunts.

Brocklejnch and Goossens had made the same mileage, but only four laps and 220 points for second place.

Six teams had the same mileage and laps in third place, with Belloni and Degraeves having a sprint point advantage of 231 against Lowelle and Demyster, 232; Rockler and Blackholm, 116, and Hanley and Taylor 96.

Others of the fourteen teams were either three, four or five laps in the rear.

Slattery Meets Delaney in a 6-Round Bout

New York, Feb. 13.—Another sell out was in prospect for Madison Square Garden tonight when Jack Delaney of Bridgeport, Ct., about to cut victor over Paul Berlenbach and Tiger Flowers, will meet Jimmy Slattery of Buffalo in a return match of six rounds.

Slattery took Delaney the last time out and the concensus of opinion today was that he would repeat the distance being ideally suited to his peculiar style.

Delaney confined his attention to trying for a knockout in the first bout, but [illegible] to speed up this afternoon in the expectation of reversing the decision.

300 REPORT FOR CREW AT HARVARD

About 300 men reported for Harvard crew, with 113 of these out for the first year eight on the official opening day of practice.

Thirty men on the varsity squad worked indifferently on the rowing machines. Next week the tank at the Newell boathouse will be in readiness for business and will take on a more serious appearance.

Coach Stevens will use the tank five times a week, with a short run on Saturday which will be reserved for a stiff jaunt as a conditioner. This will be the program until the river is freed of ice.

OLD TIME SPORT STORIES

by GEORGE V. TUOHEY

Fred Tenney One of First College Players to Break Into Big League Baseball

This is the twenty-eighth of a series of articles on old-time athletes by George V. Tuohey, famous sports promoter, who has been prominent in athletics for thirty-five years

FRED TENNEY

They called him the "Boiled Colegian" when he broke into organized baseball

He came direct from Brown College, where he had been the mainstay of the team behind the plate At that time there was a strong feeling among the regular players against college men or players who came from on high but the sandlots or up through a long training in the minors

But Fred Tenney had real ability, and in spite of the fact that the first year or two he failed to come up to major league requirements he eventually got into his stride and his natural skill enabled him to come through until he was recognized as the leading first baseman of his day

2 LEAGUES IN 1 DAY

Tenney was secured from Brown by the Boston Nationals then under the management of the late Frank Selee. In 1894, at a time when Boston was giving the famous Baltimore Orioles the stiffest kind of a battle for the pennant

Tenney was signed as a catcher but, being left-handed, was badly handicapped in throwing After serving on the bench and as a pinch hitter, in which he showed he could wallop, Tenney was hooked for regular, but that wonderful baseball instinct which marked the whole of Selee's career caused him to hold off and even when Fred was transferred to the Springfield team of the Eastern League a string was attached to the deal

With Springfield Tenney played in the field because of his hitting, and this at the time appeared to be his natural position

Tenney appeared to be settled at Springfield, but an emergency arose on Decoration Day, 1896, that caused his sudden recall. Springfield was playing at Providence in the morning when the call went down to rush Fred to Boston at once

Tenney got here in time to take part in the afternoon game against Cleveland on the South End grounds and in doing so established a record enjoyed by no other baseball player, so far as can be recalled, of playing in two distinct leagues under organized baseball on the same day

Fred worked in right field for the rest of the season, but it was in the early part of 1897 that he came into his own. Tommy Tucker had been the regular first baseman and was extremely popular with both the fans and his fellow players. But Tom was slipping, and nobody knew this better than Selee. Quietly and without exciting any suspicion as to his plans, Selee had Tenney practice at first base as much as possible before the games

WON HIS WAY TO TOP

Like a flash from a clear sky came the announcement that Tucker had been released, and that Tenney would be the regular initial sack guardian. The news raised bob, for there were two bitterly opposed cliques in the club at the time and Tenney's road was made none too easy.

Fred brought into his covering of the position a new style that brought excellent results, however, that even the bitterest of the opposition had to concede that he was a ball player of the first water, and that was what counted, so that in a short time he won his way through and was recognized as the leading man in his position in the country

The style Fred brought to the bag was an improvement on that used by Charley Comiskey when that Old Roman was the premier first baseman Playing at an extra deep point he gave himself a wide range and he could thus cut off drives that would send an edgers against other first baggers

But it was his uncanny skill in the creation of new plays that gave Tenney his great reputation During a left hander he originated the double play in which he fielded the ball to either Herman Long or Bobby Lowe at second and then returning to first and took the relay in time to retire the batsman before he reached the base

Fred remained a big leaguer for many years until his legs gave out and he was manager of the Boston National league club [illegible]

Fred, who was born in Georgetown Mass., November 26, 1871, is now in the insurance business in Boston, and living at Winthrop with his interesting family. Now, like many retired players he retains his interest in the sport and whenever he can get away from business to watch a game he invariably does so

ANDY MARTIN HEADS MARIEVILLE A. C. CARD

Andy Martin of the South End will head an all star card at the Marieville A. C. of Rhode Island tonight, and will have Mike Moran of Pittsburgh as his opponent

Both Martin and Moran are big favorites in Rhode Island as they have scored many great victories there

In the second ten-round bout Wee Willie Woods, the hard hitting Scotchman, will meet the new sensation, Dewie Abad. Two other ten-round bouts will complete the card

TEX DENIES $750,000 OFFER TO DEMPSEY

New York, Feb. 13.—Tex Rickard today denied a report that he had made Jack Dempsey a flat offer of $750,000 to meet Harry Wills in a heavyweight championship bout next Summer.

"I would be crazy to make such an offer," Rickard declared. "If Dempsey boxes for me, it will be on a percentage basis. Jack Kearns and the champion understand that perfectly."

A Story of Flaming Youth

Heart and Soul of 1924 Flapper Laid Bare in Best Story by Author of "Chickie"

START THE STORY HERE TODAY

Margaret Meadows married Will Lee at seventeen. His dissolute habits soon made her miserable. The night he raised his hand to his two-year-old child in a drunken rage she slipped from his home with her baby. Margaret supported her daughter by teaching school in several villages, finally settling in Fairdale, where she met Andrew and they fell in love. But he was tied to an invalid wife and Margaret refused to let him leave her. Nora, at seventeen, fell in love with Dane Herrick. Andrew was killed in an auto accident. Nora met Maxwell Reed, who made love to her. Margaret died and Nora was left alone. She plunged into a fast set of flappers. Dane upbraided her for her association with Max.

SIMPLEX COUPLER

PREPARING THE S

By M. A. SIMMONS,
Technical Radio Editor.

The Simplex coupler described and illustrated in the Four-R receiver as the regenerative radio frequency amplifying transformer. Ordinarily this type of coupler is employed as a three circuit coupler in standard regenerative sets. By a few simple changes they may be converted to use in radio frequency amplification where regeneration is used to a determining degree.

Several types and makes of three circuit couplers were tried out and the Simplex was decided on as the best. Many types of couplers did not cover the wave length on the broadcasting band with the condenser values specified to be used with it. If these had been used it would have been necessary to unwind and add turns to the secondary to get the proper wave band coverage. Others used the wrong kind of wire for the primary and secondary windings, causing the signals to be received with the least amount of volume and distortion.

To prove the Simplex coupler for the Four-R receiver, it was necessary to unwind 10 turns of wire from the tickler coil. The reason for winding these turns on was to decrease the tickler coil, and too much regeneration. A point had to be found where the tickler would give regeneration at the low and the wave bands and yet could be stopped at will. We took off a turn at a time until the proper values were found.

Therefore, when placing the Simplex coupler in the receiver, if you take THIRTY TURNS off the rotating coil set. To unwind the turns, first look at the rotating coil and you will see that it carries two screws to which the flexible leads are fastened. One of them has the ending of the rotating coil wire fastened to it. This is the lead from which you should begin to unwind the wire. As you unwind count off a turn at a time as you pass the screw to which the wire was fastened. When you have taken off 30 turns, cut the wire and then resolder it to the screw.

The easiest way to unwind is to take the rotating coil out of the coupler, but be sure when removing it to roll that you get the flexible leads back in their proper position.

In winding up the Simplex coupler connect all leads as shown and marked in diagram. This is essential to correct operation of the set.

The antenna coupler is so simple and the cost of the SUPERADIO unit so low that I don't believe it would be worth while to make it. By the time you would find the cost nearly the same as the manufactured unit. And with the SUPERADIO unit you can assure that it is correct.

The winding consists of 50 turns of No. 24 wire wound on a three inch form and tapped at the center turn. Take care to remember so that the same tap is used the same height as the other end of the condenser shaft.

This article completes all construction articles necessary to build the SUPERITE. Articles to follow will be on the proper use of the various tubes and sockets, types of AMPERITES to use for different tubes will follow. This last series of articles will include the important information you will want about the individual parts of the set.

BLUEPRINTS and sockets on which we have worked at all RADIOLES in the near future in connection with a Radio Atlas and Call Book to be published by the Boston Evening American. Karas Harmonik Transformers
ARE MADE IN ONLY ONE
"ALL STAGE RATIO"

THE transformer requirements of the first stage of an audio amplifier are not the same as the requirements of the second stage in each case you want a great amount of amplification as possible.

But if your transformer fails to give equal amplification of both the low and the high audio frequencies, bad distortion results.

If you use a high ratio audio amplifying transformer in the first stage, you can't overcome the effect of that distortion in the second stage. You can't magnify it—it will never correct the second stage transformer may be.

Karas Harmonik Audio Transformers are made in ONE ratio only—the scientifically correct ratio. It is correct for the first stage—and equally correct for the second stage. It delivers marvelously pure, natural, undistorted reception. And it produces more total volume than higher ratio transformers of ordinary makes because it fully amplifies all of the 12 to 20 harmonics that enter into the composition of all musical tones.

WHETHER you are going to build a New American 4-R Receiver—or simply want to improve the musical quality of the reception from your present set, secure a pair of Karas Harmonik Transformers at once and try them in both stages. Don't try to compromise with scientific FACTS.

WHY DU PONT PANELS GIVE GREATER SATISFACTION
PYRADIOLIN IS NOT ONLY HIGHER IN RADIO QUALITIES BUT EASIER TO WORK AS WELL

For the FOUR-R

This wonderful panel material called Pyradiolin was developed by Du Pont Engineers. When tested at the Cruft High Tension Electrical Laboratory of Harvard, it was proved to be exceptionally high in dielectric properties it minimizes leakage and being non-moisture absorptive maintains maximum efficiency in wet weather or dry.

In addition, Pyradiolin has a lasting characteristic beauty and is as easy to work as a piece of soft pine, for it actually takes a wood-screw without splitting.

You can buy Du Pont panels at most Boston dealers in the proper size for the Four-R or in other stock sizes—also Du Pont dials to match. Each panel is packed with a cross-section working sheet. If your dealer cannot supply you, simply phone our Boston office.

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

STATISTICS show that for every dollar spent on education, two dollars are spent for tobacco. It looks like a man would rather have a 5um cigar than good sense.

BESIDES, what does a girl care about a fellow's education if he hasn't got a cigarette?

HE may have a wonderful brain but she can't smoke it.

EDUCATION hasn't any aroma.

AND knowledge doesn't come with gold dips.

LEARNING is a wonderful thing but a street cleaner can't fill his pipe with it.

BRAINS may be more important than tobacco, but we've got to use matches for something.

IF it wasn't for cigars, the women wouldn't know what to give the men for Christmas.

AND a man likes to get something besides neckties.

AND while neckties can't be smoked, a lot of them should be burned.

COLLEGE diplomas are nice to have, but you can get more things with cigarette coupons.

NOT only that, but you can use cigar bands for frat pins.

AND every cigar store is a fraternity house.

STILL, a man hates to admit that the wooden Indian is his college professor.

AND that Lady Nicotine is one of the co-eds.

WHILE education gives you a powerful mind, all that a pipe gives you is a strong breath.

IF knowledge is so necessary, why did the government request us to send cigarettes to the boys in the trenches instead of encyclopedias?

THE best thing to do is smoke and learn at the same time. This can be done by rolling your own. Get yourself some loose tobacco and use the leaves out of the dictionary for cigarette paper.

3 MINUTE JOURNEYS

By Temple Manning

THE home life of a real desert sheik is very different from the picture most of us have received of it from stories and tales. It is in reality a quiet, comparatively uneventful life, broken by occasional spurts of warfare, but generally peaceful.

A desert community usually consists of low, flat-looking block huts. There is a roof, if one may call it that, of sticks of assorted length over which a covering of one sort or another is stretched and a wall, of woven strips of camel's hair on the weather side only. The roof covering, too, is made of these strips of camel's hair, sewed together to form a cloth.

These strips of camel's hair are woven by hand by the women of the tribe, and since the speediest of them cannot make more than three quarters of a yard of one strip in a day, it takes as long as four or five weeks of arduous labor to make enough covering for a single hut.

The sheik's tent is a bit more elaborate, of course. As befits the home of the ruler, it is decorated with many rich Oriental rugs in bright colors.

The sheik sultan himself sits on a richly decorated camel saddle. This is the traditional throne of the desert.

Besides the making of the material for the tents is the chief occupation of the desert women in the baking and preparing of the food. Burghul, their staple food, is made by putting ripe wheat kernels through a soaking process until they swell up. In this condition they shed their hulls, and these hulled kernels are then dried.

Their bread looks to all appearance like a huge flat pancake. Hand-ground flour and water are mixed together and a portion is then kneaded into a small ball. This is then flattened between the palms of the cook's hands until it is about a foot in diameter and as thin as tissue paper. This thin dough is then wrapped about a cushion-shaped affair and placed on a griddle for baking.

This bread serves the Bedouin as a lunch-basket (he wraps his food in it when off on a trip), he uses it in place of table implements, and also as a napkin at the end of the meal.

Bobby Finds a Strange Drinking-Cup

By Foxy Grandpa

"I'M awfully sorry, Foxy Grandpa," said Bobby. "I don't know how I ever lost it."

"Don't worry, Bobby," said I comfortingly. "You certainly didn't do it on purpose."

"But suppose we get thirsty!" asked the boy very much perturbed over losing our canteen and drinking-cup on a long hike which we were taking up in Kashmir, the northern province of India.

"Bunny's lucky left hind foot will take care of that. It's always brought us luck so far," I said. And on we went.

Noon came. And with the hot sun we all became terribly thirsty.

We stopped for lunch. But lunch did not mean much to us without something to drink with it.

Right in the middle of eating a big carrot which we had brought along for Bunny's lunch, he stopped short and hopped off.

"A rabbit with a purpose—" I commented, amused at the business-like way which the little rabbit directed his course.

In a moment he came back, licking his chops and smiling, his pink eyes shining and red like the tail light of an automobile.

"Spring over here," said he. Fine water, too. But I am afraid you won't be able to get a very big drink, because it's so small—it was only big enough for me to get in, after I had taken careful measurement with my whiskers."

"Hurray!" shouted Bobby, jumping up and following Bunny, who led the way.

"I don't care if it is only a drop," said I, coughing because my throat was so dry.

The spring was just a hole in the earth where beautiful clear water bubbled up.

Bobby and I dipped our hands into it but before we could get the water to our mouths it nearly all trickled out between our fingers.

"Good luck!" shouted Bunny, jumping back and examining something on the ground.

I looked, and there was a horn—round and flat. It just fitted into the spring as if it had been made to order.

Bobby and I drank our fill and then examined the horn.

"Rhinoceros horn, as I live!" I declared.

"Must have been in a fight," said Bunny.

"Yes, sir," said I turning it over in my hand.

"I thought rhinoceroses' horns were longer than that," said Bobby.

"The kind that live in Africa, are," said I. "Sometimes they are several feet in length. But not the India rhinoceros."

"Makes fine cup," said Bobby, reaching for another drink.

"Yes," I agreed. "And I'll tell you something about these horns. In olden days when kings and great potentates were in fear of being poisoned by their enemies, they used to drink out of rhinoceros horns. They embellished them with gold and precious jewels they thought so much of them. The reason for this was that they believed that if any poison was put in their wine that if it were in a rhinoceros horn it would bubble up and froth and show that it was deadly."

"Well, there's no poison in this," said Bobby, taking a big gulp of the crystal water.

FASHION NOTES

Great indignation is being expressed in boudoir circles at the inferior brand of hair being sold to cover up the growing-out bobs. Mrs. Owens-Reed-English-Butler, leader of the smart set here, claims that her imported switch changed color over night. "I was so annoyed I thought I should dye," she told your correspondent. "And the prices they charge are perfectly wigged."

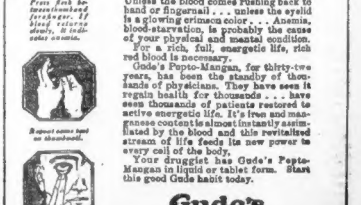
COLDS

"Pape's Cold Compound" Breaks a Cold Right Up

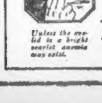
Take two tablets every three hours until three doses are taken.

The first dose always gives relief. The second and third doses completely break up the cold. Pleasant and safe to take. Contains no quinine or opiates. Millions use "Pape's Cold Compound." Price, thirty-five cents. Druggists guarantee it.



Are you slipping downhill to failure?

Try these tests:



Press flesh between thumb and forefinger. If blood returns slowly, it indicates anemia.

Repeat same test on abdomen.

Is your energy dwindling? Only yesterday you jumped out of bed singing, eager to face the new day.

But that was yesterday . . . it's the today that count in life.

Stop now . . . try these three tests. Unless the blood comes rushing back to hand or fingernail . . . unless the eyelid is a glowing crimson color . . . Anemia, blood-starvation, is probably the cause of your physical and mental condition.

For a rich, full, energetic life, rich red blood is necessary.

Gude's Pepto-Mangan, for thirty-two years, has been the standby of thousands of physicians. They have seen it regain health for thousands . . . have seen thousands of patients restored to active energetic life. It's free and magnanese contents almost instantly assimilated by the blood and this revitalized stream of life feeds its new power to every cell of the body.

Your druggist has Gude's Pepto-Mangan in liquid or tablet form. Start this good Gude habit today.

Unless the eyelid is a bright scarlet anemia may exist.

FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

When things do not go the right way, when your daily grind becomes so trying that you do not feel you can bear up against it, does your mind not sometimes leap forward to your annual vacation? And does not the thought that you are to have a complete respite and rest help you to muster fresh courage and resolve to carry on?

What does the man or woman look forward to who gets no vacation?

Happily, progress is being made by the movement, warmly advocated in this column, that vacations be granted not only to collar and cuff employes but to other classes of workers. I do not believe, however, that all employers yet realize how much the granting of an annual vacation would contribute to bringing about more harmonious feeling among their working forces.

How far certain concerns have advanced in this matter of granting vacations can be deduced from the following letter just received from Felix Vorenberg, head of the great Boston department store, the Gilchrist company:

"I was very much interested in one of your recent articles on 'proper treatment of workers,' and thought you might be interested in the vacation plan of the Gilchrist Company, which is as follows:

"Summer vacation: To be taken during June, July and August. Two weeks' Summer vacation to those who have been employed continuously for one year prior to June 1st. One day vacation for each month they have been in our employ prior to June 1st to those in our employ less than one year.

"Winter vacation: To be taken during January and February. One week Winter vacation to those who have been employed continuously for five years prior to January first. Three days' Winter vacation to those who have been employed continuously for two years previous to January first.

"We have found that this Winter vacation plan improves the general health of our employes appreciably, thus reducing absenteeism."

Two years ago one of the largest industrial companies in America, Swift & Company, started giving all classes of their workers a week's annual vacation, with pay. At that time I received a letter from one of the executives, which contained this illuminating statement:

"The granting of vacations to hourly paid and piece-work employes was brought about through negotiation between representatives in our plant assemblies (who are selected by the employes) and the various plants and the management. We regard it as one of the most forward steps in the industry in recent years in that there are few businesses in the country that give hourly paid and piece-work employes vacations with pay, and it also is a distinct vindication of the value of plant assemblies—or shop councils, as they are sometimes called."

Several automobile companies now give vacations with pay. President A. R. Erskine, of Studebaker, declares that this plan has proved most helpful and successful in their works. The Hershaw Motor Company of Boston, among the oldest and largest motor car dealers in New England, started some six years ago to give vacations with pay to every worker who had a clean record during the year.

Julius Rosenwald, head of Sears Roebuck & Co., the largest mail order house in America, once made this statement to me: "Sears, Roebuck & Co. believe refreshing vacations enable employes to render better service. In other words, we give vacations because we believe it pays."

John G. Shedd, for many years head of the largest dry goods house in America, Marshall Field & Co., of Chicago, told me a long time ago: "For a great many years in our stores practically all of our employes have received a vacation of one week or two with pay. In our various mills this necessity of a week or two time for recreation is recognized either in the form of a paid vacation, as in the stores, or through a shut down in the Summer and some holidays between Christmas and New Year's."

The huge United Fruit Co. has for years granted annual vacations to all its vast army of workers. Its employes in the tropics get three weeks every year.

The International Association of Garment Manufacturers, in a recent compiled report, declares that a vacation is equally as important in maintaining efficiency among factory workers as among office workers and that the granting of vacations to the former is becoming popular. All piece-workers, however, do not receive pay, although many employers do pay those who have been employed with them at least one year, or five years, for the weekly vacation with pay as a bonus for perfect attendance.

I do not know of any concern that has regretted starting vacations for its work people.

* * *

After all, life should consist of something besides work, work, work.

PROSPERITY ON WAY MIRRORED BY MARKET

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

Prosperity on the way in these United States is being mirrored by the stock market, which is not given to reflecting mirages in its broader swings.

Although a temporary reaction may be due, and overdue, the trend looks upward. It is certain that neither oils, coppers, tobaccos or motors can be said to have made all they can look for in the 1925 outlook that seems to be theirs.

R. G. DUN & CO.'S Weekly Trade Review in this week's issue will say regarding trade conditions in Boston:

Mild weather during the past week has stimulated retail sales, and general conditions continue favorable for further development. The response of buyers to the new heavyweight woolen prices has been moderate, as they are disposed to look carefully, awaiting other quotations or for a more active demand to materialize.

The wool market has not yet taken on much activity. Prices have shown a slight weakening. Yarn prices are somewhat easier, increased business is in sight, but current purchasing is light. Cotton goods are again displaying activity and prices have advanced in price half a cent a yard, and a demand is noted for ginghams.

The goods are quiet, but shoe goods are moving well, and it is reported that a large order for automobile top fabrics has just been placed. Mill reports more future orders than for some time. Cotton yarns are moderately active at steady prices.

Dullness in the shoe market is reflected in recent statistics of production, which showed a falling off in December, as compared with that of the previous month and that of December 1923. Current sorting is confined largely to women's fancy shoes. Jobbers find business dull, and collections slow.

Sales of leather are moderate, and the hide and skin market, after a month of activity has ceased. Country hides are weak. Small but frequent demands for chemicals make up a fair volume, with no change in quotations.

Outlook for lumber is good, but rise at present sales are light, heavy building materials moving slowly, with few changes in prices.

President Walter L. Crocker of the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co., commenting upon the continuance of the favorable mortality experience of the company in recent years says that this low mortality "is in keeping with the trend of mortality of the entire country since the war. The persistence of this favorable condition is difficult to explain with authoritative finality.

"More than one theory exists, each one satisfactory to its proponents; but not one of them is convincing upon the question of the future of the human death-rate in North America. The best that institutions like ours can do is to be prepared for the worst and to look forward with confidence to the best. We are thus prepared and our outlook is optimistic.

"Meantime we enlarge the scope of our efforts in health promotion for policyholders. While human agencies are feeble indeed against the destructive forces of nature, nevertheless the activities of public health authorities and of cooperating private agencies must be accounted contributory under ordinary conditions toward the prolonging of life.

"If epidemic disease ever again ravages our land, it will be in spite of these preventive forces, not for lack of them. Encouraged in pursuance of this worthy object, by life insurance companies, seems singularly appropriate and justifiable."

NEW TICKER SYMBOLS SPEED NEW YORK TAPE

The 101 new symbols that appeared for the first time on stock ticker tape Wednesday had office routine for a time trying to say the least.

A test of the changes made shortly after the opening showed that 294 characters a minute were being printed, compared with an average of 275 for the former symbols. It is hoped that within a few weeks the speed will be increased to 300 a minute to speed up its service so that 322 symbols or 65 quotations a minute, can be printed compared with 99 under the old system, or an increase of 10 per cent.

CAST IRON PIPE DOWN 15, THEN AT NEW TOP

Stocks were steady this afternoon in a moderately active New York stock market.

Prices moved irregularly higher at the opening. Oils were in brisk demand after the holiday advance in Mid-Continent crude prices, Mariand, Sinclair and Standard Oil of California opening a point or more higher. Savage Arms moved up 8 points and Peoples Gas 1⅝.

U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, which advanced 14 points Wednesday and then broke 20, opened 2 points lower at 218, sold at 205, then rallied to 229, a new top for the day.

American Can sustained the leadership of the advance, jumping over four points to 176, the highest price in its history.

Heavy accumulation continued in the oil shares, Phillips, Royal Dutch, Pacific, Pan American B, Independent Oil & Gas and General Petroleum being added to the list of petroleum shares to advance a point or so while Tidewater moved up two points.

Maxwell Motors B, American Sumatra Tobacco and Worthington Pump also sold two points above Wednesday's closing. Mack Trucks, Allied Chemical and Universal Pipe gained 1 to 1½ points.

The street heard reports today of possible steel mergers, one linking the Youngstown Sheet & Tube with United Steel, while Republic Iron & Steel and Jones & Laughlin also were mentioned in the rumored amalgamations.

Reports also were current that negotiations were in progress towards a merger of Penn Seaboard Steel and the Eastern Steel Company, the capital required is said to be in the hands of a Philadelphia bank.

Boston Stock Trading Is Spread Over Broad List

Boston Stock Exchange trading was in fair volume with a broad list changing hands. Gains and losses in the afternoon were pretty nearly evenly divided. Warren Bros. was an active leader, working fraction-ally higher. United Fruit, Eastern Steamship and New Haven were sold unchanged.

Olympia was at a new top since listing. Boston & Maine issues failed to reflect the excellent earnings showing just reported for the first 1925 quarter.

Income account of Boston & Maine Railroad for 1924 as compiled from quarterly reports compares with actual reports of other years as follows:

WNAC BROADCASTS N. E. CONSERVATORY SHOW

The first performance on any stage of the new three-act musical comedy, "The Pirate's Daughter," will be presented this evening by the Alpha Chapter, Sinfonia Fraternity of the New England Conservatory of Music, a special arrangement this performance will be broadcast direct from Jordan Hall by Station WNAC, the Shepard Stores, starting at 8 p.m.

The skilled singers and musicians of the New England Conservatory have put a great deal of effort into the production of this new musical comedy. The music by Mr. Brown is said to be remarkable, as he has captured a new set of melodies which will surely please the radio audience as well as those at Jordan Hall.

The entire production is under the general direction of Clayton D. Gilbert, assisted by Benjamin H. Russell. Harland A. Bleker is musical director. Helen Gould plays the lead, "Jacqueline," the Pirate's daughter, while Ben Russell is cast opposite her as "Peter."

DURANT PROFITS ON PIPE REAL MYSTERY

W. C. Durant's profits in U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, amounting to over $10,000,000, are a real mystery. The former Boston auto wizard's "paper millions," however, are not pleasing to statisticians. The assumption that the spectacular operator still has intact some 450,000 shares acquired at much lower figures apparently does not take into account the fact that his holdings may differ substantially from day to day, as he undoubtedly carries continually a trading line of stock which will amount to many thousand shares. In any event any attempt to estimate Mr. Durant's paper profits at stated intervals is largely guesswork.

F. W. Grand Stores

Report of F. W. Grand Stores for 1924, showing $458,806 final net for the 100,000 shares of no par common, compares with final 1923 net of $611,526, or $5.11 per share.

$899,000 SUIT UNDER ADVISEMENT OF COURT

Court of Appeals at Richmond, Va., today began hearing January 26 in the suit of the White Oak Coal Co., a New River Co. subsidiary, against the government, has taken the case under advisement. It will probably be three or four weeks before a decision is announced.

The suit is filed in the District Court at Charleston, W. Va., White Oak Coal Co. was awarded $899,690 damages against the Navy Department, representing the difference in price between the market and what the navy allowed the coal company on bituminous coal requisitioned during the period from July, 1919, to April, 1921. The government appealed and testimony on the appeal has been completed.

Victory in this suit would be of no small benefit to Boston-listed New River. Should this sum ever actually be received by the company, it would amount to around $8 a share on the 73,477

Lawyers in Business

This Interests Young Law Students and Sugar Stockholders

This is Earl D. Babst, lawyer, who now runs the biggest sugar business in the world, and much to the satisfaction of the stockholders that own the business.

It is said that among all the long list of saints in the calendar, there is only one, a holy man of Brittany, that BEGAN as a lawyer and ENDED as a saint. This saintly lawyer devoted his life to the poor, and undoubtedly has had a great reward.

A little while ago you might have said about great corporations that there is hardly one lawyer among those actually managing the big, gigantic businesses of the country.

Now it has been demonstrated that the mind of a lawyer, thoroughly trained in legal details, as well as in general knowledge of law, and concentrating intensely on gigantic business problems, is the best possible leader for the great business corporation of today.

The man whose picture you see here was a young lawyer in Michigan twenty years ago. He practiced law in the usual general way—that will interest young lawyers and law students who are asking themselves, "How can a lawyer make a living?"

Among other clients, his firm looked after some matters for the National Biscuit Company, one of the biggest concerns in the nation. Mr. Babst soon became General Counsel of the company, and concentrated on its affairs. He moved to New York where he was first vice-president of the big company, and where he had transferred his attention from merely legal problems to the entire executive business.

A little later, in 1915, he left the big biscuit company to become president of the American Sugar Refining Company, the biggest concern of its kind in the world.

The latest report of the sugar company shows that the right kind of a lawyer, really concentrating on the problems of his company, possessing business sense and energy in addition to knowledge of the law, makes the best possible kind of a manager.

Mere corporation management, or mere knowledge of the sugar business, would not have taken the American Sugar Company through the war, or enabled the stockholders to read the good news about assets increased and debts paid off in the latest report.

When the war began the president of the sugar company had to decide not only local and national legal questions, but also international legal questions.

There never was a business in all the war subject to more violent fluctuations than the sugar business. Even after the war sugar was as high as 30 cents a pound for raw sugar!

The lawyer-president of this company took it through all of the changing times and prices, serving as a member of the International Sugar Committee, as representatives of the United States, in the work of allocating sugar supplies to the whole world.

After the war came the big problem, the buying and hoarding of sugar. Now the sugar trade has settled down. And there came also the most difficult problem of the business man, that of repudiation of contracts, politely called "cancellations," but in reality meaning REPUDIATION.

This involved knowledge of the laws of all the States in the Union. It involved not only transactions with courts, but with Legislatures.

The industrial corporation of today deals with problems that are not only national but international, that are infinitely more complicated than the entire business that comes before the chancelleries of many of the smaller nations.

There is encouragement for young lawyers and law students in the fact that Mr. Babst, who began as a young lawyer in Michigan, with no especial backing, concentrating his attention on business matters as he went along, finds himself now the active dominating head of one of the biggest concerns in the world, a director in many other important financial and other big corporations.

The day has gone by when the lawyer can hope to make a living only by helping bigger and more important men to settle their fights among themselves, helping the criminal to escape punishment, or the victim of an accident to recover damages.

Such a man as Elihu Root, John Milburn, Louis Levy or the late Levy Mayer of Chicago, is in the first place a business man, and only in the second place a lawyer.

Mr. Babst has gone the whole way, including the practice of law, concentrating on the management of one gigantic enterprise, and giving to it the benefit of his legal knowledge and the fighting ability acquired in the practice of law.

The value of an able lawyer as leader of a big concern is shown in the fact that without the fight that Mr. Babst made against the danger of wholesale repudiation of the sugar industry, after the war, the stockholders in his concern might have been utterly ruined.

Young lawyers, as you go along, and other young Americans as well, keep your mind on business, study business and other questions broadly, as well as in detail.

There are plenty of opportunities left in America.

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS—

By HELEN ROWLAND

My Daughter, wherefore was Woman born to suffer, while man cometh into the world to rejoice?

Lo, the answer is simpler than a reducing diet and plainer than a tailored hat.

For, alas, a woman taketh the world and all the people in it, seriously; but, a man taketh nobody seriously, save HIMSELF!

A woman doubteth and dreadeth what others may THINK of her; she cherisheth their good opinion and hungereth them to her heart. But a man is concerned only with his OWN opinions. And, if he is pleased with himself, that is enough!

Helen Rowland

Yea, every man is as an Eve Tangay, and the song in his heart is "I don't care!"

Behold, when a woman first meeteth a man, she saith in her heart, "I wonder if he findeth me pleasing!"

But when a man first meeteth a damsel he saith, "Now, I wonder if I shall find her pleasing?"

Whatsoever a woman doeth, she saith, "I wonder what THEY will say!"

But, whatsoever a man delighteth to do, he DOETH it, and asketh no man's approval, and no woman's permission.

When a woman arrayeth herself in a new garment, she is filled with doubt as to whether she shall be beautiful in a man's eyes.

But, when a man goeth forth wearing a new four-dollar hat, he is as one that cryeth, "Oh, look who's here!" And his heart doubteth not that he fulfilleth ALL a woman's artistic ideals, and satisfieth her sense of beauty.

When a woman faileth to win a man's heart, she weepeth, saying, "Alas, how lacking must I be in charm!"

But when a man faileth to win a damsel's heart, he saith only, "How lacking must she be in sense! For verily she knoweth not her own mind. Yea, she is blind to her own good luck!"

Thus, my Daughter, doth a woman elect herself The World's Champion Worrier.

But, a man is "wise in his own conceit"—and his CONCEIT keepeth him happy all the days of his life.

Verily, verily, a man's conceit is as a raincoat, off which the opinions of others roll as water; but a woman's vanity is as chiffon, through which EVERYTHING penetrates!

Hence is woman the Suffering Sex!

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

When the Winter wind reigns over valley and hill and the snow lies unbroken and deep, when the little brook, lately all laughter, is still and the daisies and violets sleep, then what visions I glimpse in the firelight's brave gleam as it dances on hearth-stone and wall, and over the ruby-red embers I dream of the trees, rising stately and tall. Where the ranks of the forest stand, leafy and green, there the restless winds rove day and night, and over the emerald pathways between dance the shafts of the sun's shifting light. When it's Winter without and the icy wind blows, ah, what magic these embers hold still, as they bring back the blush of the April wild rose and the green of the oaks on the hill.

LIFE IS MUCH LIKE FISHING

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Life is more like fishing than it is like anything else. All progress is by fumbling and experiment rather than by logic and intelligence.

We are not to blame for our color, our home, our race, or for not being born the Prince of Wales or otherwise born to great place. But we are responsible within certain limits.

We are not responsible for not being a fish, or a bird. That is a matter wholly beyond our control. How we were born and where we were born depends upon others than ourselves. But we should not forget that a great deal depends upon ourselves.

There are rays of light the other side of red and beyond violet, but we cannot see them. There are doubtless beauties in the universe that lie beyond the capacities of the human eye, so there are sounds too low and too high for the human ear.

Our responsibilities lie within a certain gamut, but they are true none the less.

Those who are most likely to be successful are those who realize both their responsibilities and their limitations. It is necessary not only for a man to work hard, but for him to offer his product in the best markets. To be a good fisherman he must not only know how to fish, skilfully, but he must know where the fish are.

There is no fishing where the fish are not. You may be an expert caster and select your worm or fly, and have all manner of patience, but it will do you no good unless the fish are there to bite.

The most remarkable thing about Jesus is not only that He said such wonderful things, but that He found so many people who believed Him and at least partially understood Him.

In other words, His greatness consisted not only in His wisdom, but in His knowledge of the human race.

It is necessary not only for the sculptor to have a beautiful ideal and dream and a knowledge of the plastic art, but it is necessary for him to know how to use his clay.

In this way the remarkable thing about Paderewski is not that he can play the piano so well, but the extraordinary thing is the number of people who appreciate his playing.

A proper appreciation is the test of greatness.

What good does it do you to be an expert wood carver if nobody wants your wood carving?

So in what we produce an eye should always be had toward the demand of the people who use our product. If there is no demand, there is not much use in making the product.

TEMPERATURE AND THE CLIMATE

By Garrett P. Serviss,

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

"Just what is meant by 'mean annual temperature'? What is expected of it in the way of conformity? Is it a fixed and permanent figure for a given location, or is it readjusted from time to time? A. S. H."

The mean annual temperature of a place on the earth's surface is determined by taking the average of the mean monthly temperatures observed at the same place, and these in turn are determined from the average of the mean daily temperatures at the same place.

The averages are arrived at by adding the thermometric figures in degrees for all of the successive observations, daily, monthly or yearly, as the case may be, and dividing by the number of observations. The daily average gives the basis for the monthly, and the monthly for the yearly. Then successive years may be averaged.

The means thus obtained for the annual march of temperature furnish the basis of drawing charts of the "isothermal lines." I. e., lines of equal temperature, which show at a glance what places have the same average temperature taking the year around.

But the fact that certain places, more or less widely separated in longitude and also "isotherm" does not necessarily indicate a close resemblance in climate between such places. Some may have a mountain climate, some a mid-continental climate, and some a seashore or marine climate.

Thus, the mean annual temperature of San Francisco and that of St. Louis, as indicated by General Greely, are the same (55.7 degrees Fahrenheit), while the climate at the two places is widely different.

The mean absolute range between highest and lowest temperature in a year is 9.5 degrees at San Francisco and 48.5 degrees at St. Louis. But this, too, is subject to variation, the highest recorded range being, from records made some thirty years ago, 61 degrees for San Francisco and 128 degrees for St. Louis.

These differences are accompanied by other differences which are not covered by mere temperature measurements. The secret of the contrast between the two places just named lies in the fact that San Francisco has the marine type of climate, mitigated by the influence of the ocean and its currents, while St. Louis has the continental type which tends to extremes.

So, unless the annual range is considered as well as the mean annual temperature, the true character of the climate is not disclosed.

More than that, as intimated in what has just been said of records of exceptional high ranges of temperature, it is important to consider carefully what the monthly, and even more the daily, ranges show. The daily range is, perhaps, of the most immediate practical importance. Sudden and violent changes of temperature are as unfavorable to health as to comfort.

East of the Missouri Valley the average daily range runs from 12 to 15 degrees Fah., but west of that it increases to from 20 to 35, except along the Pacific Coast, where it is lower, as we have seen.

In determining daily averages hourly averages and even the averages of observations made several times per hour are employed. The greater the number of observations that are included, provided that they are taken in regular order, the more accurately the curve of temperature can be drawn.

As to the "conformity" expected, it is no greater than that which attends any system of averaging.

The greater the number of years included in the averaging operation, the closer the general accord must be, but such a system intentionally excludes exceptions by smoothing them out. Of course, any large variation from the established bother mals is noticed, but too much weight cannot be given to exceptional figures for a single year.

It is important to remember that temperature alone does not make climate, climate being defined as "average weather."

ARE YOU PREPARED TO MEET UNEXPECTED EXPENSES?

You are bound to have unexpected expenditures this coming year. They may be large ones.

If you are wise you make allowance for unforseen financial drains on your income, but possibly you do not lay aside enough for them.

If you have budgeted your income for 1925 and have not made liberal allowance for expenses not apparent at this time you stand a big chance of being in debt at the end of the year.

It is not wise to plan spending all you expect to earn this year.

You should make a definite budget and meet it weekly.

It is far wiser and safer to have your emergency fund show a balance at the end of the year than to have a deficit.

Don't be like so many who get along well on their income as long as everything goes right. If extra expenses crop up in any considerable amount you want to be in good shape to meet them.

How long is it going to take you to learn to be successfully business-like with the money you earn?
